

Committee Backs Bill to Prevent War Profiteering

Would Give President Broad Powers in Event of Strife
HAS DRAFT CLAUSE
Bill Empowers Executive to Put 'Ceiling' On Prices

Washington—(AP)—The house military committee approved today a bill to give the president broad authority to prevent profiteering in war time.

The committee's action broke a long committee deadlock over the legislation, which President Roosevelt recommended in his national defense measure to congress.

The measure contains a provision for a university draft of man power and industry in wartime.

The chief executive would have power to put a "ceiling" on prices. In addition the legislation provides for a "system of taxation which shall absorb all profits above a fair normal return to be fixed by congress."

The committee approved the legislation shortly after President Roosevelt told his press conference in a discussion of the relative merits of airplanes and battleships that always in the past when any new weapon of warfare was invented an antidote had been discovered for it.

Requires Tax Plan
The treasury secretary would be required by the war profits bill to transmit to congress on the opening day of its next session a recommendation for a tax plan provided by the measure.

The bill provides that whenever congress declares war the president is authorized to proclaim it to be "unlawful to buy, sell, lease, or otherwise contract for any article, service, or right, or interest in property," which he might enumerate, "at a higher rate, rent, price, commission, compensation or reward," than was in effect on a date he would name.

When, in time of war, the president considered it immediately in the interest of the military establishment necessary, he would be authorized to draft men between the ages of 21 and 31, subject to any exemptions, or other conditions he might prescribe.

Control Over Resources
The legislation would empower the president to provide government control over material resources, industrial organizations, public services, and security, or commodity exchanges.

He also could require the registration of any or all individuals engaged in the management, or control, or any industrial enterprise and could set up, a licensing system for various types of business.

Violation of the proposed law would be punishable by fines up to $100,000 fine or a year's imprisonment, or both.

Mr. Roosevelt discussed the merits of weapons of war after he was asked what he thought of talk in some quarters that the increasing effectiveness of aircraft had greatly limited the usefulness of great warships.

He said that in the whole history of warfare new weapons had usually been balanced, as changing the whole course of offense and defense but that no single weapon had long remained supreme.

Find Defensive Weapon
In this connection he mentioned the Monitor, famous Civil war fighting ship, the development of torpedo boats late in the last century, and the development of submarines. For each of these, he added, some adequate defensive weapon was evolved.

In the case of the airplane, he said, defensive weapons were the anti-aircraft gun and the defense airplane.

The discussion then to general defense policies and the chief executive indicated he thought little

Gets Life Prison Term For Murdering Waitress

Detroit—(AP)—Recorder's Judge Christopher E. Stein sentenced Clarence Norton, 35, to life imprisonment today for the slaying of Emma L. Mahn, 22-year-old beer garden waitress six weeks ago. Norton was convicted last week of first degree murder.

Charles K. Hart, defense attorney, had asked that sentence be deferred to permit further psychiatric examination of the prisoner.

Gen. Pershing Rallies in His Fight for Life

Heart and Blood Pressure Improved. Official Bulletin Says

CONDITION CRITICAL
Doctor Says 'No Prediction Can Be Made at This Time'

Tucson, Ariz.—(AP)—General John J. Pershing, whose condition became so critical last night physicians predicted the end was near, continued to rally today and an official bulletin said his heart and blood pressure were improved.

"General Pershing's rally continued," said the 9:15 a. m. (10:15 a. m. C. S. T.) bulletin by Dr. Roland Davidson. "He is better than he has been since early yesterday afternoon."

The bulletin, however, contained the statement that "his condition must still be regarded as critical."

"No prediction can be made at this time," Dr. Davidson stated.

The World War chief, who lapsed into unconsciousness at 9 o'clock, last night causing his physicians to surmise he could not last long, rallied under the administration of heart stimulants and "partly regained consciousness."

Temperature Normal
His temperature was normal and he rested well during the early morning hours. He rallied enough at one time to show signs of recognizing those at his bedside.

Sergeant C. C. Shaeffer, the general's orderly, related that when one of the nurses removed a hypodermic needle from the patient's arm he turned to Shaeffer and said:

"She is just as mean as ever, isn't she?"

Shaeffer was smiling again and there was a general air of relaxation among attendants and relatives.

Lost Hope For Life
The staff of physicians despaired of his life early last evening. Dr. William Kerr, heart specialist of the University of California Medical school, San Francisco, who was summoned to the bedside but missed a plane connection, was advised not to come, that his arrival would be too late.

Physicians administered heart stimulants early today and reported

Burglars Enter 3 Neenah Homes

Watches, Rings, Cash in Loot Taken Last Night

Neenah—Three burglaries were staged early last night, the thieves stealing valuable watches and other jewelry, Neenah police reported today.

Homes of Mrs. Oscar Baldwin, 626 S. Park avenue, Mrs. Ollie Boller, 129 E. Franklin avenue, and Frank Ziwer, 308 Caroline street, were burglarized. Entrance into each of the three homes was gained through rear doors, the burglars opening the doors with keys, police said.

Police believed that the three jobs, all within a short time, were done by the same burglars. They said the burglars apparently started on S. Park avenue, where they entered Mrs. Baldwin's home, then walked or drove along E. Franklin avenue, where they entered Mrs. Boller's home and then along Caroline street for their final job, all in a direct route.

Drawers in the three homes were ransacked and watches, rings, cash and other types of jewelry were taken. A wrist watch, a pocket watch and a class pin were taken from the Baldwin home which was entered about 8 o'clock. The Boller home was entered about 9 o'clock and the following articles were stolen: two watches, a diamond necklace, nine rings, dime bank with money and earrings.

The Ziwer home was entered about 10 o'clock and two watches, one an heirloom, a wedding ring and $650 in cash were stolen.

Chicagoan Is Beaten to Death; 3 Youths Sought

Chicago—(AP)—A beating administered by three teen age youths caused the death early today of Edward C. Richard, 59, vice president of the Schmidt Brothers printing house.

Richard was waylaid in front of his home last night and died of concussion of the brain without regaining consciousness. Detectives expressed the opinion he was slugged while resisting a holdup attempt.

Mrs. Frieda Bray, who witnessed the attack, said the youths appeared to be about 16 to 18 years old.

Prepares to Submit Data In Black Legion Probe

Mt. Clemens, Mich.—(AP)—Prosecutor Vincent L. Fitzgerald said today he would turn over to State Attorney General Raymond W. Starr all evidence collected in a current grand jury investigation into alleged Black Legion activity in Macomb county before taking any cases to court.

Eight witnesses were called for today. Thirty were subpoenaed, before the first session.

Thieves Chisel Hole In Office Safe; Find Nothing but Ledgers

Even burglars aren't getting as much out of life as they might and some even spend a lot of time and work for nothing, which is against the fundamental rules of the union, if burglars have a union.

Last night thieves forced an entrance through a window at the Miller Electric company, 905 N. Meade street, chiseled a hole in the side of the office safe and left with just what they had when they started—nothing.

Police investigated the burglary this morning and reported that no money or papers were missing from the safe. The thieves had chiseled in from the ledger side and found only books for their trouble. The money box was in the opposite section of the safe.

2 Titled Visitors Dead in Airplane Smashup on Ranch

Doctors Hope to Save Life Of Third; California Pilot Killed

San Luis Obispo, Calif.—(AP)—Doctors strove today to save the life of James Lawrence, son of an English nobleman and only survivor of an airplane crash on the William Randolph Hearst ranch that killed Lord Terence Conyngham Plunket, 38, of London, his wife, and their pilot, T. J. Phillips.

Lawrence, his body covered with burns and his ankle fractured, lay in San Luis Obispo sanitarium, where he was removed late yesterday from the accident scene. 40 miles north of here. Dr. James Marshall said he expected Lawrence to recover.

Seeking to land on a fog-shrouded airport at the ranch, Phillips overshot the field. One wing struck the ground and the plane crashed in flames.

No Hope Of Rescue
The group had left Los Angeles for San Simeon, where the Plunkets and Lawrence were to be guests of Hearst.

Flames consumed the craft so quickly rescuers had no chance to reach those trapped inside. Lawrence was thrown clear of the plane which struck a mile and a half south of the airport.

Lord and Lady Plunket arrived in Hollywood two weeks ago and leased the mansion of William Haines, former screen comedian. They had been guests of Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., and his wife, the former Mary Pickford.

Sebastian Taken to Badger State Prison

Green Bay—(AP)—The final chapter in the Sebastian murder case, as far as Brown county is concerned, was written here this morning when Sheriff Clifford Kellner left for Waupun at 8:30, taking with him Philip Sebastian, 37, to the state prison to serve a sentence of 10 to 20 years for killing his wife Anna with an ax in their one-room shack at Oneida last Sept. 29.

Sebastian was convicted of second-degree murder by a circuit court jury a week ago Monday after the state has asked his conviction on a first-degree count. Judge Henry Graess imposed the sentence last Monday, but granted a stay until today in order to permit Sebastian to arrange his affairs.

Sebastian has been unemotional, jail attaches report, interested principally in whether there is a furniture factory in the prison. Before coming to Oneida to farm, he was a skilled furniture worker in Chicago.

Jacket Fastener Saves Man From Bullet Wound

Milwaukee—(AP)—Charles E. Nowak, Jr., 24-year-old filling station attendant, escaped serious injury or possible death last night when a metal fastener on his jacket deflected a bullet fired at close range by a holdup man.

Detective Lieutenant Eugene O'Gorman said Nowak suffered only skin abrasions.

The man fired when Nowak walked toward him, intending to seize the gun. The impact of the bullet knocked him down. Nowak told police, but two sweaters and other clothing helped cushion the shock. Police removed the bullet, a .32 caliber slug, from the fastener where it was imbedded. The gunman led without any loot.

Civil Liberties Probe Shows 'Force, Deceit and Corruption,' Bob Asserts

Washington—(AP)—Senator LaFollette (P-Wis.) today said the 14-volume findings of his civil liberties committee contain accounts of "force, deceit and corruption."

Among the first cases to be investigated when the committee resumes next week will be that of the Ohio steel strike.

"For many years," said LaFollette, "an influential section of industry has regarded with callous indifference the civil rights of its employees—and has not hesitated to exercise force, deceit, and corruption to defeat them."

Nor, said LaFollette, was this practice abandoned in 1933 when federal legislation, designed to "safeguard for all workers the civil rights enshrined in the constitution" was enacted. It was this, in fact, the Wisconsin senator explained, that led ultimately to the formation of the civil liberties committee.

Organized in June, 1936, the committee since then has investigated numerous suspected violations of civil liberties committee.

"The hostility to the N. L. R. A. can be understood only in view of the long and relentless campaign waged by many employers and groups of employers in this country against the organization of workers into trade unions," the committee chairman asserted.

Buckman Will Face Hearing Early in April

Bond Is Set at $25,000 At Arraignment in Milwaukee

CAN'T LEAVE STATE
Will Appear With Fellow Officers of Bankrupt Concern

Milwaukee—(AP)—B. E. Buckman, described by District Attorney H. J. Steffes as "the spearhead of a gigantic fraud," surrendered today on a warrant charging violation of the state "blue sky" law.

Buckman, president of the bankrupt Madison investment firm bearing his name, was arraigned immediately before District Judge Harvey L. Neelen, who set bond at $25,000.

Buckman's preliminary hearing was set for April 4, the same day as that of two fellow officers in the Buckman firm—Louis C. George, vice president, and E. C. Holt, secretary-treasurer. Charges against George and Holt are similar to those against Buckman.

Demanding that Buckman's bond be fixed at $50,000, Steffes asserted:

"The state charges that this defendant was the spearhead of a gigantic fraud, involving millions of dollars."

Judge Neelen rejected Steffes' request and set the lower bail figure, but ordered Buckman not to leave the state pending trial without the court's permission.

Disregard of the order, the judge said, would result in contempt of court action.

The Buckman warrant, specifically charging sale of unregistered securities, was issued Feb. 16. Buckman was in Texas at the time. George and Holt were arrested soon after they were named in warrants the same day. They are at liberty under $25,000 bail.

Buckman's attorney, Carl Hill of Madison, challenged Steffes' assertion that Buckman was the firm's directing head.

"Who was the active head, then?" Judge Neelen asked.

"It was Mr. George," Hill replied. "Tried to Raise Bail

"He (Buckman) could have been here before," Steffes said relative to Buckman's surrender. "We have

French Deputies Open Foreign Policy Debate

Paris—(AP)—The chamber of deputies today opened a two-day debate on foreign policy which may determine if France is to follow the British lead in "realistic" European appeasement.

Hostility between right and left evoked bitter epithets and almost led to blows. Friends held the communist Renaud Jean and the rightist Andre Daurer in their seats after Jean had called Daurer "spy and traitor" and the rightist had retorted with "servant of Moscow."

Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos and Francois de Tesson, undersecretary for foreign affairs, followed the debate closely, striving to keep the majority lined up behind the Chautemps government.

Last night's speech by Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg of Austria drew the praise of Ernest Perez, popular democrat, the first of the deputies who had requested permission to speak.

Perez lauded the Austrian's "courage and dignity in protecting his country's independence." The deputy interpreted the German influence in Austrian affairs as directed toward "an Anschluss, or union, for which France—with her central European allies—must counter with 'Anschluss for peace.'"

Six Slightly Injured In Train Derailment

Trenton, Mo.—(AP)—The Rock Island railroad's Golden State limited, fast eastbound passenger train, was derailed last night at Reed Station, 24 miles southwest of here. Six of the 80 passengers were slightly injured and others were shaken and bruised.

Nine of the 10 cars left the track and three cars were thrown on their side. C. J. Brown, general manager at Kansas City, said a broken rail was supposed to have caused the derailment.

The injured included Mrs. Lester Behling, Milwaukee, and Mrs. Rose Behling, Oconto, Wis.

Arkansas-Missouri Area Fighting Flood Menace

Little Rock, Ark.—(AP)—A new trouble spot bobbed up on Arkansas' flood map today when the St. Francis river reached within a few inches of the tops of its levees in extreme northeast Arkansas near the Missouri line.

Laborers were rushed to the stream west of Kennett, Mo., to reinforce the dikes with sandbags.

Residents of Fulton in the southwest section of the state apparently had beaten back their own flood of the five-mile wide flood of the Red river. The river crested late yesterday at the all-time high mark of 36.4 feet to remain stationary several hours. The highwater mark was 11.4 feet above flood stage.

Bellevue Fulton some 50 river miles, the Red Cross gave succor to 300 families, driven from their lowland homes by two breaks in the Red river levees opposite Garland City.

Austrians Rejoice Over Chancellor's Pledge of National Independence

Bitter Battle Is Likely in Senate On Reorganization

Administration Chiefs Predict Victory After Long Fight

Washington—(AP)—President Roosevelt's year-old request for authority to reorganize federal bureaus became today the focal point for the second bitter senate fight of this session.

The battle, which will begin Monday, is expected to last at least two weeks—not nearly so long as the anti-lynching struggle, but probably much more intense.

Administration leaders predicted eventual victory. Opponents, however, offered amendments to every major provision, although they agreed some limited reorganization should be undertaken.

In the forefront of opposition were Senators Wheeler (D-Mont.), Byrd (D-Va.) and Burke (D-Neb.), who stood together a year ago against President Roosevelt's court bill.

Favors Changes
Wheeler announced last night he would seek to have congress pass on all reorganization changes made by the president, who under the present bill could abolish and consolidate bureaus.

"If the bill passes as it now stands," Wheeler said, "congress ought to admit it is incompetent to legislate, and turn all of its functions over to the executive branch of the government as had been done in Germany, Italy and Russia."

Burke joined Byrd and Senator Bailey (D-N.C.) against a proposal to abolish the general accounting office, an independent agency now under the control of congress. The bill would substitute an independent auditor to check all expenditures and report annually to congress.

Senator Walsh (D-Mass.) said he and Senators Clark (D-Mo.) and Bulow (D-S.D.) would try to strike out a provision replacing the civil service commission with a single administrator. The American Federation of Labor also was fighting that proposal.

Phil Puts Future Up to His Party

Reach to Serve as Rank And File of Progressives Decide

Madison—(AP)—Governor LaFollette told the Progressive state committee yesterday he is ready to serve the party as a candidate for governor, United States senator or "something else" and would leave the decision with the rank and file.

The meeting of the committee, first of a series planned by the governor before the 1938 election campaign starts in June, was held behind closed doors, but details became available today from official sources.

While the governor has been rumored as a likely candidate for a fourth term, he told the state committee he wants Progressives to consider the future of the party, both in 1938 and 1940, and that he is willing to serve "where they think best."

The governor informed the committee he believed the party should start now to chart its course for the year 1940 and to determine whether it wishes to organize a national third party or join with an existing party for the next presidential campaign.

The chief executive did not elaborate on what he meant by his readiness to serve in a capacity of "something else" than governor or senator.

He was said to have outlined for Progressives a national objective of raising the standard of living and determining how this can be done through improvement of the economic system.

Orders Reinstatement Of District Attorney

Madison—(AP)—Governor LaFollette has ordered the reinstatement of E. W. Horne as district attorney of Forest county, the executive office announced today.

Horne was suspended on Dec. 4 and J. E. Messerschmidt, assistant attorney general, was ordered to investigate charges that certain county officials were involved in a fraudulent sale of county lands to the federal government.

Two county officials were arrested and have been arraigned.

The reinstatement was recommended to the governor by Attorney General O. S. Loomis but on the condition that the attorney general's office conduct the prosecution of the officials arrested.

In a report to the governor Loomis said that checks the federal government issued for certain Forest county lands were payable to several county officials and that District Attorney Horne signed them as a matter of form without any suspicion of irregularity.

Philippine Issue Again Discussed At U. S. Capital

Officials Consider Possibility of Delaying Independence

Washington—(AP)—Administration officials have been discussing the possibility, informed persons said today, of postponing Philippine independence because of disturbed conditions in the Far East.

A decision has not been reached, it was emphasized. Under present law the islands would receive complete political freedom in 1946.

Some members of congress, on the other hand, have been advocating that the United States should get out of the Philippines at once, inasmuch as the islands are close to the Sino-Japanese war zone.

Problems of the islands will be discussed at luncheon tomorrow by President Roosevelt and Paul V. McNutt, American high commissioner. In support of their belief that a change of policy might be forthcoming, some observers cited President Roosevelt's recent announcement of a plan for continuing commercial relationships with the Philippines until 1950.

Sees Threat to U. S.
Meanwhile, Representative Brewster (R-Maine) said the danger of the United States becoming embroiled in an Asiatic war had been intensified by Great Britain's overtures toward Germany and Italy.

Brewster, a member of the house naval committee, said in an interview that an accord with Italy and Germany would leave Britain free in Asia to attempt to curb Japan or make "an advantageous trade settlement" with her for the development of China.

Asserting the United States must guard against letting any "provocative incidents" embroil her in a war in the Far East, Brewster added:

"If the British become satisfied that America will not engage in any such Asiatic adventure, Britain will promptly make an advantageous trade settlement with Japan for the development of China and America once again will find itself left flat by British diplomacy."

Press Enthusiastic
Catholics and Jews of the front and the Vienna press were enthusiastic.

Schuschnigg said his policy was based on the last words of Dollfus, killed in a 1934 anti-foreigner Nazi putsch, that: "We wanted only peace. We attacked no one."

The momentous speech came as police announced a ban on Nazi party insignia and songs.

Ditch Digger Will Make Debut Tonight In New York Opera

New York—(AP)—A ditch-digger will make his debut in opera tonight.

Up from the muck of a WPA project in Flushing, 23-year-old Genaro Cardinale will sing the leading role of Alfredo in Verdi's "La Traviata" at the Hippodrome.

Wearing new $3 shoes and a borrowed tuxedo with 11 cents in the right-hand pants pocket, he rehearsed his role last night.

His audience tonight is expected to include Mayor LaGuardia and, of course, Jerry's mother and the eight other children in the family.

For eight years Jerry has shined shoes, delivered ice, peddled fruit, collected junk, sung in burlesque and dug ditches to pay the rent while he took singing lessons. Now he has his chance.

Nazis Only Faction Angered by Schuschnigg's Speech

L A U D S MUSSOLINI
Berlin Irked Because Hitler's Name Is Not Mentioned

Vienna—(AP)—Austria's patriots marched in joyous celebration into the morning hours today to celebrate their chancellor's pledge the nation would remain independent of Germany and free of nazism.

But Austrian nazis were angered and there were some scattered demonstrations. There was also talk of a hitch in the new Austro-German friendship drafted by Chancellor Schuschnigg and Germany's Fuehrer Hitler at Berchtesgaden Feb. 12.

The essence of that agreement, Schuschnigg told parliament last night, was an unmistakable guarantee by Germany to respect Austria's sovereignty. It was, said the Austrian chancellor, a "milestone toward peace," a step to assure "permanent friendship."

United States Won't Order Americans to Move Out of Central China, Japan Told

25 New Chinese Divisions Organized to Fight Invaders

Washington (U)—The United States has asserted emphatically to Japan the rights of Americans and American property in China.

Secretary Hull said today this government had presented a straightforward note to Japan declaring that Japan will be held responsible for any damage to Americans and their property in China.

In the note, the United States refused to accept Japan's warning to Americans to leave Central China and to specially mark their property.

Hull told the Japanese that there rests upon American officials and other American nationals in China no obligation whatsoever to take precautionary measures requested on behalf of the contending forces toward safeguarding American lives and interests.

Hull added that this government had voluntarily advised its nationals to leave certain Chinese areas and that these warnings had been observed by Americans. He said that would continue to be a voluntary practice.

Nevertheless, he warned in his note, the obligation remains on the military authorities to exert the utmost precaution so that American nationals and property shall not be injured by their military operations.

Hankow, China (U)—The government of the United States has told Japan in a blunt note that it has no intention of ordering evacuation of Americans in the central China war area as the Japanese army formally had requested.

It was understood in diplomatic circles here that the note declared Americans have a perfect right to live and to carry on their duties in any part of China, regardless of the presence of the Japanese army.

Authoritative sources here disclosed that Ambassador Joseph C. Grew had handed the United States note to the Japanese government at Tokio.

Most of the Americans concerned are missionaries.

It was recalled that after the sinking of the United States gunboat Panay by Japanese airplanes, Japan had guaranteed against infringement of, or interference with, the rights of the United States in China. Also Japan said then that steps would be taken to learn the whereabouts of American citizens in China, presumably to avoid danger to them.

The Japanese request for Americans and other foreigners to leave the vast central China war area was made public Feb. 3.

Then it was announced that the Japanese embassy at Peking, capital of the provisional government, had delivered to the American embassy a note which said that:

"In view of the spread of hostilities between the United States and Japan, and the fact that the Japanese army is engaged in operations in the area designated should evacuate and mark their properties so Japanese airmen would not bomb them.

After the warning was issued, Japanese bombed the Chengchow area, killing and wounding more than 1,000 noncombatant Chinese.

State Ready to Prosecute Investment Company After Five Months of Sleuthing

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — Issuance of warrants this week for the three principal officers of the B. E. Buckman company of Madison and William M. Dinneen, former high state official, provided a smashing climax to a financial bubble which burst with a resounding echo last October and which has since in its own way unraveled even the most spectacular investment scandals in the state's history.

The crash of one of Wisconsin's most prominent investment houses brought in its wake state and federal government investigation of allied affairs, so many that in the minds of hundreds of interested and worried investors, the far-flung affair has become confused.

Although they now appear imminent, there have yet been no trials. Interminable hearings have been held but criminal warrants for Dinneen, accused of tipping off the Buckman company from his point of vantage in the public service commission, E. E. Buckman, L. C. George and Edgar C. Holt, the three principal officers of the defunct securities firm, were issued this week.

To enable Fox river valley residents—preliminary investigations have indicated that scores of Buckman investors live in that section—to get a bird's eye view of the devilish trail of the official investigation into the "Buckman case", the developments thus far are:

Last October a federal securities examiner secretly visited Madison for an original survey. Shortly after the state public service commission—then in charge of regulating sale and issuance of securities in the state—acknowledged formal complaint on Buckman sales.

Take Depositions

In November the commission took depositions from complaining investors and decided to proceed with an effort to determine whether the Buckman company's license should be revoked. At the beginning of the hearings, the company promptly surrendered its license. In the meantime the Buckman company passed into the hands of assignees as the result of circuit court action, and the U. S. circuit court of appeals in Chicago upheld a lower court decision branding the Buckman company sale of one of its principal stock items, Crude Oil corporation of America, a "fraud."

December a large staff of federal securities investigators settled down in Madison for a long study, and 42 Buckman company customers launched court action to recover $90,000. At the same time in a blistering report, the public service commission asked the governor to step in to assure criminal prosecution of members of the Buckman firm.

Special John Doe inquiries by Lawrence Brody, LaCrosse, and William H. Spohn, Madison, in December culminated in a tax commission assessment on Dinneen and his wife of nearly $75,000 in back income taxes and penalties.

In December Federal Judge Patrick T. Stone declared the company an involuntary bankrupt, and the public service commission was suspending the $700,000 bond registration of the Gulf Coast Water company, a Buckman inspired unit.

Dinneen protested the tax assessments, charging the state with an attempt to seize his property, and denying charges of huge unreported income during more than a decade when he was executive officer of the state's powerful public service commission.

In January, under adverse examination, Dinneen denied that he had paid Dinneen for his services, while his company filed a debtor petition listing debts as more than twice its assets of about $400,000.

Last month Dinneen took the stand for a grueling and startling probe into his personal financial affairs and his associations with the H. M. Byllesby company, gigantic holding company in Chicago which controls a good share of the state's electric power. Dinneen admitted accepting large loans from Halford Erickson, former head of the Byllesby unit, which were never repaid. Immediately after, the public service commission refused to permit a proposed $14,000,000 refinancing by Northern States Power company, a Byllesby subsidiary.

Early in February the state completed the first phase of its income tax case against Dinneen, and adjourned the hearing to February 23, which was Wednesday of this week. At that time, however, Dinneen had disappeared, after pleading illness shortly before, and police of two states were ordered to search for him for the service of a criminal warrant alleging that he violated the state's blue sky law by furnishing confidential and valuable information to the Buckman firm during his tenure as secretary of the regulatory commission.

Thus, after almost five months of preliminary groundwork, the state today is preparing to bring to trial the four men it charges are the principals in what has been characterized by enforcement officers as the worst financial debacle in Wisconsin's history.

December a large staff of federal securities investigators settled down in Madison for a long study, and 42 Buckman company customers launched court action to recover $90,000. At the same time in a blistering report, the public service commission asked the governor to step in to assure criminal prosecution of members of the Buckman firm.

Special John Doe inquiries by Lawrence Brody, LaCrosse, and William H. Spohn, Madison, in December culminated in a tax commission assessment on Dinneen and his wife of nearly $75,000 in back income taxes and penalties.

In December Federal Judge Patrick T. Stone declared the company an involuntary bankrupt, and the public service commission was suspending the $700,000 bond registration of the Gulf Coast Water company, a Buckman inspired unit.

Dinneen protested the tax assessments, charging the state with an attempt to seize his property, and denying charges of huge unreported income during more than a decade when he was executive officer of the state's powerful public service commission.

In January, under adverse examination, Dinneen denied that he had paid Dinneen for his services, while his company filed a debtor petition listing debts as more than twice its assets of about $400,000.

Last month Dinneen took the stand for a grueling and startling probe into his personal financial affairs and his associations with the H. M. Byllesby company, gigantic holding company in Chicago which controls a good share of the state's electric power. Dinneen admitted accepting large loans from Halford Erickson, former head of the Byllesby unit, which were never repaid. Immediately after, the public service commission refused to permit a proposed $14,000,000 refinancing by Northern States Power company, a Byllesby subsidiary.

Early in February the state completed the first phase of its income tax case against Dinneen, and adjourned the hearing to February 23, which was Wednesday of this week. At that time, however, Dinneen had disappeared, after pleading illness shortly before, and police of two states were ordered to search for him for the service of a criminal warrant alleging that he violated the state's blue sky law by furnishing confidential and valuable information to the Buckman firm during his tenure as secretary of the regulatory commission.

Thus, after almost five months of preliminary groundwork, the state today is preparing to bring to trial the four men it charges are the principals in what has been characterized by enforcement officers as the worst financial debacle in Wisconsin's history.

Austrians Rejoice Over Schuschnigg Pledge of Freedom

said, were merely an extension of the friendship accord of July 11, 1936.

The German guarantee of independence. A commitment by each government to keep out of the other's internal affairs. An Austrian promise always to recognize that Austria is a German state. Drafting of measures for internal peace.

Berlin—Austria's Chancellor Schuschnigg had the opportunity to rally to Hitler. He failed to seize it and therefore must go into the discard—this is the reaction of a number of leading nazis in Berlin.

Their concern is because Schuschnigg did not praise Germany's Hitler in his speech to the Austrian parliament, broadcast in Germany. Schuschnigg stressed Austria's determination to retain her sovereignty, as against the German idea of union of German-speaking nations.

"Why did Schuschnigg not find the same generous words for Hitler as our fuhrer found Sunday for the Austrian chancellor?" prominent nazis asked. "Why did he read the riot act so aggressively to our Austrian nazi comrades?"

"Why open up old wounds?" Schuschnigg missed his big chance. For us he is finished. History will take its course without him."

Hitler Hears Speech

Schuschnigg, reporting on the Feb. 12 Berchtesgaden talks with Hitler by which Austria gained amnesty for past political offenses and won entry into the Austrian cabinet, emphasized the nation's determination to retain sovereignty.

Hitler, in Munich last night for celebration of nazidom's eighteenth birthday, listened to Schuschnigg's broadcast speech before giving himself to the famous Hofbrauhaus to 16,000 Germans' demand for return of war lost colonies.

Hitler proclaimed a new drive against "Jewish agitators in Germany," said the nation would accept no substitute for her colonies, and summarized past achievements thus:

Consolidation of nazi power, protection of nazi rights externally, regaining of sovereignty over the whole Reich and regaining of equality of rights for Germany among nations.

Assault Rumors

The fuhrer attacked as malicious rumor-mongering stories he attributed to London that 40,000 nazi legionnaires in Germany were at the Austrian border despite the Berchtesgaden pact and another 16,000 were ready to march into Czechoslovakia where reside 3,500,000 Germans.

Such stories, he charged, were the work of "Jewish international poison mixers."

"We soon will proceed energetically against Jewish agitators in Germany," Hitler said. "We know they are representatives of an international organization and we will treat them accordingly. . . . We know perfectly well these Jewish agitators do not fight in wars, but they are the only ones who profit from these wars."

The press, meanwhile, pointing editorials at the British trend to co-operation with nazi Germany and fascist Italy in efforts to reach a European peace understanding, hinted at Germany's hope to smash the Franco-Russian alliance.

Russia and France now have a mutual assistance pact that the one shall aid the other if either is attacked by a European power.

4 Firms Exempt From Rail Clearance Law

Madison (U)—The state public service commission granted exemption from the railroad clearance law to four Wisconsin firms today.

The firms are the Charles A. Kraus Milling company and the Perfection corporation of Milwaukee, C. Starkweather and Son, Beaver Dam, and the Beloit Iron Works, Beloit.

Track clearance conditions involved in each case, the commission said, did not seriously imperil the lives of railroad workmen.

Civil Liberties Probe Shows 'Force, Deceit and Corruption,' Bob Asserts

of dollars on gas and guns and other hundreds of thousands on unwinding through espionage.

This campaign employed methods which denied the exercise of the fundamental rights of citizenship, free speech, and free assembly.

The committee received scores of complaints, chief among which, LaFollette said, were those "from unions to the effect their members were being spied upon by industrial detective agencies and that their efforts to organize were being broken up by these spies."

Espionage Was Business

Subsequent inquiries, he continued, showed "this labor espionage was, in itself, a business, carried on by detective agencies under contract with employers who were determined to prevent organization of their employees."

"Closely allied with these agencies," LaFollette continued, "sometimes by interlocking business arrangements, were three firms selling tear and sickening gas to industry for use in strikes. These three activities, which may roughly be classified as espionage by detective agencies, strikebreaking by industrial agencies, and industrial munitions, formed the subject matter of the first phase of the committee's work."

As a result of these inquiries, information was gathered on which corrective legislation, to be introduced soon in the senate, was based.

In addition to detective agencies and industrial munitions firms, the committee investigated the Chicago steel strike and riot, automobile manufacturing concerns, and labor conditions in the Harlan county, Kentucky, coal fields.

Union Officials in List

"Out of a list of about 300 detective agency industrial spies," the chairman disclosed, "100 were unnamed officials, many of them high in the ranks of labor organization, formulating the policies for thousands of workers."

"With such an array of talent at its disposal, anti-union corporate labor policy has followed a pattern which the committee's record has made familiar."

"The cost of labor espionage to American industry can only be approximated. Five detective agencies examined by the committee reported income in 1935 aggregating more than $490,000.

"A sample group of selected clients of detective agencies were found to have spent in the four years from 1933 to 1937 about $10,000,000 for labor espionage, industrial munitions, strike breaking and allied services."

Boy Scouts and Their Troops

Due to the lull in outdoor sporting activities that usually occurs at the advent of a new season, the majority of the scouts have had to direct their attention to other diversions. As a result, they have been busily engaged in the planning of the scout calendar's most outstanding social events of the year and the preparation of displays which will be shown at the coming merit badge show.

Troop 3, Menasha, recently held its most anticipated social event of the entire year. Climaxed by its annual volleyball contest, the troop held its father and son banquet at the St. Thomas parish house in Menasha. The event of the year included a court of honor, a knot tying race, and a series of talks. Following are the scouts who received recognition for their advancement. Frank Heckrodt, "Red" Drucks, Bill Quinn, and Jack Martin, tenderfoot; Gilbert Hill and Dan Grode, second class ranking; Dan Quinn, first class. Hugh Strang, Bill Spengler, and Ted Shepard, third class. The merit badge group, Herbert Merrill, succeeded in attaining the life scout ranking. The climax of the court of honor came, however, when Hugh Strang was presented the Eagle scout award by Mowry Smith.

Other miscellaneous awards included 100 service hours medals to Bill Heckrodt and Dan Quinn, scout axe to Dan Quinn, knife to Bill Lawson, fire set to Allen Burnstein, and compass to Frank Heckrodt for winning a troop contest. Members of the troop committee were introduced to the group by Mr. James Kimberly, and the assistants to the troop scoutmaster were introduced by Don Rusch, scoutmaster.

Leaders Speak
Addresses were presented by the Rev. A. A. Chambers and Mr. Quinn, the former expressing his views on scouting and the latter touching upon the interesting subject of electricity. Mr. Quinn proved what he had told by a number of visual demonstrations including a demonstration of sound vibrations and the display of a radio and receiving set which he donated to the troop. As the concluding event of the evening, the volleyball teams composed of the troop officers under the direction of Mr. Mike Grode and Mr. Don Rusch defeated the scouts in two games out of three.

Seventeen members of Troop 25, Appleton, recently enjoyed a sleighride party followed by the serving of refreshments. Plans for the troop's next business meeting were made.

The Panther patrol of Troop 43, Neenah, at present, leads in the troop's contest, having massed a total of 149 points with the Cobra patrol second with a score of 81. The field of individual scorers was led by Francis Nowak followed by Ambrose Plucker and R. A. Plucker with scores of 165, 155, and 115, respectively. The number of fencing matches concluded the last meeting. Tests in safety were passed by R. A. Plucker, Douglas Schultz, Russell, Calvin, William Lampert, Robert Mosemy, Marvin Gore, Arman Schultz, Eugene Johnson, Robert Lee.

The total enrollment of Troop 46, Brillion, recently was increased to 17 scouts when a new member, Ronald Geiger, joined the troop. The most prominent features of the program included a first aid life saving demonstration conducted by Leon Fritz with an assisting squad composed of James Klieber, Francis Clavers, John Puser, and Roger Schwallier, a talk by Jack Willis, and a radio play entitled "The Unknown Scout." The play written by Charles Willis and Harland Neff, was based on the discovery of the scouting movement by William Boyce. The scouts presented their show at the St. Mary's Catholic school and at the Brillion High school.

13 Tenderfoots
Thirteen scouts of the troop were recently inducted into the tenderfoot ranking at St. Mary's church. Following the initiation ceremony, the Rev. M. J. Krause presented a sermon intended to emphasize the ideals and character building embodied in the scout movement.

A number of scouts of Troop 26, Marion, recently advanced several well-earned steps up the scouting ladder at a joint bean feed, parent's night, and court of honor sponsored by the troop. The following scouts received their uniforms, registration cards, and tenderfoot badges in the solemn atmosphere of a candle-light ceremony: Howard May, Jack Below, Kenneth Shanger, Jim Plopper, Tom Meyer, Francis Johnson, John Buhr, and Bob Smith. Second class badges were received by Jim Plopper, Howard Wianand, Arlyn Westphal, Bill Olson, Bob Lacy, Roy Wiesman, Bill Borchart, Norman Draeger, Arthur Lorrig, Roy Elandt, and Murray Meyer. Burton Mayne was the only recipient of the first class award. The scouts who attained Star scout ranking included John Pfeiler, Jim Rogers, Dean Arndt, Tom Rogers, and Phil Bowers. The climax of the presentation ceremony came when Sidney Knutson was honored by the Eagle scout award, the first scout in Marion to attain that coveted degree. Mr. E. S. Rogers read a letter from James E. West acknowledging Sid's requisites, and Mr. Max Stieg of Clintonville presented an inspiring talk.

Officers Named
The following troop officers were announced by Mr. Mike Foley, scoutmaster: assistant scoutmasters, Art Bohr, Dale Parfitt, and Sidney Knutson; junior assistant scoutmasters, Phil Bowers and Jim Rogers; senior patrol leader, Tom Rogers; patrol leaders and assistants, Dean Arndt and Norman Draeger (Flying Eagle patrol), Art Lorrig and Robert Lacy (Firefly patrol), Burton Mayne and Roy Wiesman (Flying Horse patrol), and John Pfeiler and Bill Ellison (Clipper patrol); troop scribes, James Pockat and Kenneth Shanger; troop buglers, Julius Dopin and Bob Smith; troop librarian, Arlyn Westphal; troop quartermaster, Howard Wianand; assisted by Bud Johnson.

The troop committee which has so successfully managed the troop during the last year was named as follows: Emory Rogers at the head of leadership training, J. E. Arndt supervising advancement and scoutcraft, Ray Mayne handling merit badge work, B. C. Meyer acting in the capacity of ceremonial man, L. K. Forest acting as activities director, and George Hoffman supervising the financial and publicity departments. As a token of appreciation for their fine work while in office, the committeemen were presented with auto light-reflectors with a scout emblem. The finishing touch of the event was provided by the singing of several new songs, and the display of a radio and receiving set which he donated to the troop. As the concluding event of the evening, the volleyball teams composed of the troop officers under the direction of Mr. Mike Grode and Mr. Don Rusch defeated the scouts in two games out of three.

At the last regular business meeting of Cub Pack 6, Appleton, two new members were admitted to the group. The new members will not be full-fledged scouts, however, until they have succeeded in passing the preliminary bobcat test. A game of steal-the-bacon played during the pack's recreational period was won by Don L.

OLD AGE CASES
Los Angeles—An old age pensions have created a fiscal problem for Los Angeles county. Rex Thomson, county superintendent of charities, says there will be a total of 62,300 old-age pensioners on the rolls in the county by next June 30, compared with 54,799 on November 30, 1937, and 35,481 in July, 1936.

During the current fiscal year, Thomson reports, $20,001,581 will be spent in Los Angeles county on such cases. Of this sum, $7,119,587, or 34.1 per cent, must come from county tax funds.

Safety on Streets and in Home are Discussed at Kimberly Gathering

Kimberly — T. H. Allan, Stevens Point, former traffic officer of Superior, and W. F. Steuber, assistant director of the Wisconsin Highway Safety department, stressed safety on the streets and in the home in a talk at a safety program at the clubhouse Thursday morning in which the schools and the community took part.

Mr. Allan declared that men are safer and less apt to get killed or injured at work in industry, even though among hazardous machinery, than they are on the streets and in the home. The reason for this, the speaker continued, is that the three most important things in safety are engineering, enforcing the safety laws and education in safety meeting and safety posters.

Mr. Allan declared that many of the girls and boys present would soon be driving a car and told them that when they make out application blanks to be sure to abide the traffic laws and regulations. Mr. Steuber addressed the audience on the "Coming Accidents of 1938." He first called the attention to the safety cadets and the safety patrol boys and complimented them for being interested in safety protection and making school crossings safe. He declared that he received a letter from Wisconsin Rapids stating that the school boy patrol system there was started nine years ago and during all these years they have never had an accident to a boy or girl going to or coming from school.

The school boy patrol system in Kimberly was started about four years ago and despite the fact that both schools are on the main highway, Kimberly, like Wisconsin Rapids, has had no accidents during that period. Mr. Steuber said that more than nine hundred persons were killed by automobiles in Wisconsin alone last year. Driving a car, he asserted, is a full time job and the man at the wheel cannot be paying attention to things at side of the road. A passenger in the car should not carry a constant conversation with the driver as it distracts his attention from his driving, the speaker declared.

Short safety talks were also given by J. E. Gerrits, principal of the high school; the Rev. C. B. Vandenberg, pastor of Holy Name church, and by J. T. Doerflinger, Kimberly mill manager.

The program was sponsored by the Policemen's Protective association of Kaukauna of which the Kimberly officers are members. Oscar Jahn, secretary of the association, introduced the speakers. Another safety program is being planned in the near future. The Kimberly High School band, under the direction of Gordon Kotowsky, furnished music.

Banker Talks to Pupils Of St. Mary Grade School

Youngsters of the seventh grade were taken through the bank by Mr. Hansen yesterday. The talk was given in conjunction with a study unit on banking in both grades.

R. L. Swanson to Speak at Chicago Boat, Sport Show

R. L. Swanson, a national director of the Izaak Walton league, will speak at Navy pier at the ninth annual Boat and Sport club show in Chicago March 6. Babson Says New Housing Act Does Only Part of Job

Believes Roosevelt on Right Track; Suggests Reduced Labor Costs

BY ROGER BABSON

Babson Park, Fla.—Does the new housing act mean that America will finally get the building boom of which she is so desperately in need? The unnecessarily heavy costs of erecting a small home have been stifling building. The new act cuts initial financing charges and makes it easier to take on a home. But it does not slash through the high costs and other obstacles which are blocking a real construction boom. Despite these drawbacks, however, home building should register a good improvement this spring.

Steadily rising tax rates and the desire for automobiles rather than homes are two of the hurdles in the building pathway. Gasoline for the car instead of milk for the baby is the great problem in many a modern family. In the pre-war era, the wage earner, no matter how modest his job, managed to provide for a "rainy day." The interest he received on his bank deposit or the rent he saved by buying his home on a building and loan plan added to his income and helped him to save more.

Furthermore, his savings were loaned on real estate or helped to finance new productive projects. Now all that is changed. The worker of today puts his savings for the day he has purchased on "time" he finds that his "savings" have depreciated to almost nothing. He has put his nest-egg in a "wasting asset."

Prefabrication Inevitable
The high material and labor costs of building, however, are the major handicaps today. Archaic production and distribution methods keep material prices at almost prohibitive levels. The answer to this problem is prefabrication. The small-scale progress in this field is not a question of manufacture. This problem has been solved. But others such as real estate, building code, zoning, and financing questions must still be ironed out.

Certainly, large-scale output of factory-made houses right now would bring the prices of good homes down to the "mass-market" level—between $3,500 and $5,000. Until that time, however, antiquated methods of building will prevail and will keep costs at a high level. Workers in building supply factories and in warehouses and lumberyards are now being organized in some cities. Hence, little reduction in material prices can be expected.

The worst handicap of all, however, is the foolish and unpatriotic policy of building trade unions. I believe in collective bargaining. The entire nation can benefit from it. While profits of stockholders in older industries that were organized years ago are less today, certainly their consumers have benefited. Why? Because managements were forced to become more efficient—to install labor-saving machinery. This, in turn, boosted the output per man-hour.

Limit Work

The unionization of textile, shoe, coal, and other lines has lifted man-hour output in these industries. In the building trades, unionization has not increased the man-hour production. Why? Because the leaders of the unions have sabotaged their own men and their industry by stupid and uneconomic policies. They have put artificial limits on the amount of work a man can do; while at the same time they have held down the number of skilled workers.

Slow workers must be paid as much as fast workers. So the efficient lose their incentive to do more than the inefficient. Bricklayers in some cities get $13 per day, while hundreds of jobless are excluded from the building trades by the unions. Furthermore, in highly unionized towns a man cannot give an unemployed neighbor a little handiwork around his home without fear of bombing or beating. The result of these various union tactics has not only been a wage scale out of all proportion to the type of the job, but a tremendous cost-per-unit of work done.

Interest Rate
Now what has the new Housing Act accomplished in overcoming high costs? The answer is: Not much except to cut initial financing charges somewhat. Actually, I think a lower interest rate could have been made. Banks are choked with money. Better have it loaned on homes and insured by the government at 2 per cent to create more jobs, than to give it away to men for raking leaves. Insuring loans up to 90 per cent of valuation does not necessarily mean that banks will take such big mortgages. The new regulations will let home-builders go ahead with a smaller down-payment, but it will not, all by itself, produce a big construction boom.

So I feel that the new housing act has done only part of the job. President Roosevelt was on the right track when he called for an annual wage for building workers. If some such scheme could be mapped out, maybe building workers would drop their unreasonable hourly scales. Even if an annual wage scheme is not feasible, the administration could do much toward getting labor costs down by insisting on maximum hourly rates (based on an annual wage) on public works projects and on homes built under government-insured mortgages.

Yet, regardless of all this pulling and hauling, building is bound to increase over present levels. People will do what is the cheapest thing to do. Just as soon as it is cheaper to build than to rent, people will build. Ten years of sub-normal construction have created a tremendous shortage of desirable rentals. Rents have risen 41 per cent since January, 1934. Building costs have skyrocketed, too, but there has been

Some Police Might Not Be Much Help to G-Men

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

Kansas City—From time to time Mr. J. Edgar Hoover, our modern young King Brady, who can solve a crime by sneaking magic chemicals on an echo, has indicated his distrust of city and county police officials in certain parts of the country. Mr. Hoover has his little faults, including an operatic temperament which prompts him to take applause intended for others, but his suspicions cannot be scoffed away as being due to professional jealousy. Mr. Hoover knows something about the character of many local police organizations.

He knows, for example, that in Kansas City almost every cop is the protégé of some politician and that some of the politicians in the local machine are underworld leaders.

The ruling machine openly plays ball with the underworld, and it is obvious, therefore, that if Mr. Hoover should open his heart to the local police there would be a dangerous chance that the criminals under investigation would be tipped off. That risk is inherent in a system which permits gambling-house magnates to place envoys in the police organization.

The policeman's political sponsor may be a racketeer who derives his influence from his ability to turn out the vote for the machine in his zone of operations. He may be a lawyer in the criminal line and attorney for the man under suspicion. The possibilities are many where the underworld is publicly recognized as a legitimate political division and granted certain rights as such.

Suppose Mr. Hoover were investigating the activities of a criminal adherent of the Pendergast machine with a good record of service to the organization. If he were to appeal to the Kansas City police for co-operation he might discover that he had placed his trust in men who were, in effect, lookouts for the crook. Evidence might be destroyed or concealed and witnesses adjusted or sent away.

In Some Places Police, Underworld Don't Fight
The great series of kidnappings and other wild crimes in St. Paul, regarding which Homer Cummings remarked that there was something rotten in St. Paul, could not have happened if the local police had been trustworthy. Naturally, therefore, in many places the department of justice men have a feeling that they must outwit not only the criminals but the police as well.

Hot Springs, Ark., is another stamping ground of criminals, and there are sheriffs in some Missouri counties whom even the police of Kansas City look down upon as unreliable and the partners and protectors of crooks.

It may be an old story to the residents of those regions, but the country at large does not understand that there are towns and rural districts in the midwestern crime belt as tough as any of our big cities at their worst. The slot machine has had much to do with this development, a business so popular with the citizens and lucrative to the racketeer that it has money enough to influence elections and demand considerable treatment from officials who, by any decent system, should sound it constantly.

Kansas City Policy Is To Keep Them Quiet
In Kansas City the frank policy of the machine is to bribe the criminal element to refrain from a drop in the last several months. Hence, despite all the hindrances, I expect 1938 building to improve materially over the final half of last year and to come close to equaling the entire 1937 level.

2 Progressives Boomed for Seat In U. S. Senate

Immell and Boileau Mentioned Frequently in State Capital Circles

(Post-Crescent Madison Bureau)
Madison — Senatorial booms for two widely known and influential Progressive politicians appeared today to be well launched, although that party will not select its nominees for six months.

Although they have withheld formal announcements, the capital this week generally accepted the candidacies of Adjutant General Ralph M. Immell, who is supposed to be the present day heir of the late John J. Blaine organization, and Congressman Gerald J. Boileau of Wausau, three times seventh district representative and leader of the Wisconsin Progressive bloc in Washington.

Immell's activity has created a good deal of excitement within the party and predictions are rife that if he is the Progressives' choice there will be a bolt from that faction headed by self-willed William T. Evjue of Madison, old time leader and party propagandist.

Boileau visits Evjue. Meanwhile, however, reports from western Wisconsin, Immell's home section and seat of the late Senator Blaine's strength, indicate that the military leader has already organized considerable sentiment in his favor.

The factional spirit of the Blaine following which Immell is now supposed to control to many observers indicates the probability that the Progressive split of 1926 may be repeated this year. In that year an important part of the Progressive wing of the Republican party, castigating the Blaine machine, went its own way.

It is recalled that Mr. Evjue was the chief of that bolt. This week Congressman Boileau paid Evjue a call in his Madison office. The next day Evjue's capital city newspaper blossomed out with a prominent front page article intimating that Boileau has Governor LaFollette's support for a senate campaign, and that the Immell effort is hopeless.

Immell's enemies in the Progressive party argue that his experience in the milk strike, and his military career make him unfit as a candidate of the party which has traditionally opposed militarism and has generally been known as a pacifist group.

Rural School Students Give Historical Plays

Fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grade students of the Pleasant Corners school, town of Greenville, gave historical plays Tuesday in observance of George Washington's birthday anniversary. All members of the second and third grades have earned certificates in Reading Circle work. Sixteen of the seven-teen advanced pupils earned the special honor seals. Due to the severe snow storm last month, only one pupil, Caroline Lieske, was perfect in attendance for the month. Earl Palmbach, Alice Borchardt, Caroline Lieske, Alice Steinbach, Letha Palmbach and Joan Emmott were on the honor roll for the last six weeks.

Gerald Rohm, Betty Bevers, Donald Rohm, Gene Schuh, Roy Wichmann, LaVerne Bevers, Robert Schuh and Eunice Wichmann were perfect in attendance at the Forest school, town of Black Creek, during the last six weeks, according to Ralph Schuh, teacher.

County Supervisors Go Into Session March 15

Action on a recommendation of a special committee to straighten out curves on Highway 125 to provide a southern connecting link between the city and Superhighway 41 is expected to be taken at an adjourned meeting of the county board which will open at the courthouse March 15. Other matters of routine nature remaining from the November session of the board also will be disposed of. The board was to have met Feb. 15 but the session was postponed until March 15 because of the annual road school which highway committee members attended at Madison.

LABOR ON THE UNDIVIDED PROFITS TAX

Among other things, in its effort to help in solving the prevailing business stagnation, the executive council of the American Federation of Labor urged Congress to repeal or modify The Undivided Profits Tax, more exactly described as the Job Destruction Tax.

From the council flowed as pure a stream of sense as ever gurgled out of any association of business executives. It argued, well fortified by experience, that government spending can never supply anything but temporary relief and that "the real remedy for unemployment is the creation and maintenance of work opportunities in private industries." It added that the repeal of this highly objectionable tax, that originated with the President and was crammed by him down the throat of Congress, would help materially on the way back to the heights of prosperity from which we were washed by a Roosevelt wave.

Perhaps we should stop there. But to do so would be shutting one eye to the fact that Labor does not always speak out against those who become chummy with it even when the intelligence which abounds within its ranks cannot approve hi-jinks of our parlor socialists who love to experiment with calloused hands as well as the banking system.

One word can be said for the President in relation to his pet tax against which the whole country has now arisen in arms. He thought it was merited by the extreme emptiness of the treasury. Unfortunately he failed to reason that his own policy of wild extravagance had occasioned a resort to equally wild taxation policies.

And Labor didn't have much to say in criticism of the profligacy of the Roosevelt Administration although it is well-nigh certain it realized the brink to which we might expect to come far more clearly than those whose heads were above the clouds and already delirious with popular acclaim.

One of the excellent things about union labor in America is that it has become a business. Recently there was published estimates that the unions in this country give direct employment to about 75 thousand people and handle, all told, about 80 million dollars per annum. This extensive undertaking must be run on business principles or it is bound to collapse. And so long as Labor always has on its own lap this great business it is bound to understand better and appreciate more fully similar problems that arise in other businesses and, when aggravated by careless government policies, boil to a torment for their directors.

The Undivided Profits Tax reminds us somewhat of the Hungarian suicide song entitled "Gloomy Sunday." That tax makes every New Year gloomy, compels perhaps half the companies in the country to retrench in the ways of employment and inventory, to say nothing of dividends, until the new year has gone far enough so they may know whether they can survive.

For just before New Year's Eve the Government picked their pockets clean.

HIGHWAY GRIDIRON

Senator Bulkley's bill for a system of "transcontinental self-liquidating super-highways" costing $6,000,000,000 to $8,000,000,000 seems gargantuan enough to justify strong adjectives of any length. This proposal dwarfs any road plan previously devised by ancient Rome, modern Russia or even the United States of America. In the presence of such a scheme, even the highway under construction from Alaska to Argentina seems trivial.

There would be a gridiron of great national roads, three running east and west and seven north and south, built in the most modern and durable fashion, each with a 300-foot right of way and four to twelve one-way lanes, with easy grades and curves, and connections all engineered to prevent congestion and danger.

They would be built by the government as "self-liquidating" projects, within five years and would be expected to pay for themselves through a toll system.

Some such plan will doubtless be carried out some day. But there will be much question whether the time has yet arrived, and whether it could, or should, be paid for by tolls.

With all the recent construction, we have pretty good highways now in most areas. Other nations, Germany in particular, have built such a system on a smaller scale, and called it "military." We have no neighbors justifying such defensive measures. There should be no hasty action about so vast an undertaking.

GREAT WICKEDNESS

As we look back now upon that dreadful World War, even with all its horror, it was comparatively decent. Armies generally fought like soldiers; combatants faced combatants. When noncombatants were killed or starved, it was usually unintentional. The Spanish war began to open our eyes as to how cruel modern warfare can be, and then came the Japanese war in China.

Recent accounts from American correspondents give more appalling pictures than mankind ever saw before. Ten million people fled from their homes in the Yangtze valley to the interior. Five million of them are destitute and starving. The condition of 90,000,000 who remained in the conquered areas is little better. Homes are burned, cattle are killed, grain is taken or destroyed, cities and villages are in ruin, means of livelihood are gone.

There are also stories of incredible barbarism perpetrated by Japanese soldiers, formerly considered disciplined but recently out of hand, or even encouraged in destroying, burning and ravishing. The swarms of refugees, fleeing from once fertile lands made barren, and from invaders merciless even to women and children, reach "colossal proportions." There is a situation not even matched in the conquests of the terrible Genghis Khan, because the lands he ravaged were not so populous.

The cold savagery of such wholesale lawlessness and cruelty, unjustified by any sane principle of human civilization, make normal people wonder whether humanity is worth saving.

War is the great wickedness. If we cannot do better than this, let us turn our earth over to the more kindly animals.

NAZI OPTIMISM

It is reported that widely-read Nazi writers, describing the progress that is being made in "selling" the present German political philosophy in other lands, expend much of their enthusiasm in providing glowing accounts of Hitleristic activity in the United States.

According to these writers, the successes already attained in the organizing of Nazi groups here prove that the American system will shortly be changed. The writers say the "melting pot" idea that has been a basis of this nation's greatness is doomed; that a permanent German-Americanism is a goal of Nazi ambition, and that we shall need to get out of the habit of referring to the "United States of America."

Instead, it is forecast that a result of Nazi activity in the United States will be the splitting up of American citizens in more or less autonomous racial units as the "United Nations of America."

The Nazi writers are optimists. Their optimism, however, is exceeded by their lack of understanding of American ideals and traditions.

One wonders how it is that Nazi leadership in this country, if it is of a caliber that merits such definition, can believe that a good place to take root is in a section in which American tradition is centered.

Only lately in a town of Connecticut that was old when colonists set about the winning of American freedom authorities moved to discourage Nazi activity.

Perhaps, though, Hitler's disciples in the United States believe that if Nazism can be established first in the birthplaces of American freedom the converting of the rest of the country to their beliefs should prove a comparatively easy task.

Such reasoning is certainly optimistic.

TAMED TOUGHS

Chicago's reputation as a tough town has outlasted the fact, says Jeff Davis, the "king of the hoboes." He has just been there making a study of the place and reports Chicago is "going soft." He went to the Loop and the Gold Coast, he visited tough joints and dropped in at police stations, he tried the streets at 3 and 4 o'clock in the morning, but everywhere, at all times, things were quiet and orderly.

As for the hoboes themselves, most of them these days are earning enough money to pay for a bed at night and three square meals a day. They haven't had to become tramps or bums. Many of them are off to the world hobo congress, meeting in London the latter part of February. Here, too, is an interesting thing. The chief matter of business at that congress will be consideration of "the contribution a hobo can make to world peace." The hobo, like Chicago, is a better fellow than his reputation suggests. He is ready to do his part to uphold civilization.

Opinions Of Others

LIBERTY

We are indebted to the Baltimore Evening Sun for bringing to light what we consider to be one of the finest quotations ever credited to Abraham Lincoln. In a few simple words it expresses the whole philosophy of democracy and liberty. Here it is—from a speech made October 1, 1858—

"I am for the people of the whole nation doing just as they please in all matters which concern the whole nation; for that of each part doing just as they choose in all matters which concern no other part; and for each individual doing just as he chooses in all matters which concern nobody else."—New York World Telegram.

EITHER I am getting prophetic or else I see possibilities so obvious that intelligent people don't bother with them at all . . . some time back, when the Japanese started to bomb Shanghai and eventually spread their bombing operations elsewhere, I suggested that it would be just as fair—although just as inhumane—for the Chinese to retaliate by bombing Japanese cities. . . the Chinese never seemed to take the suggestion, however, and I retired as a military strategist. . . being a violent objector to most war anyway, this was probably just as well . . . but now I read in the papers and am informed by the silver-tongued news commentators that Chinese bombers are paying their respects to Japanese centers of population . . . they have begun with Formosa and the chance that they may continue operations up the China coast and over the more centrally located Japanese islands is supposed to be very good . . . so maybe I am both a prophet and a military strategist after all . . . or maybe I just ventured a guess on something that was bound to happen . . . particularly with Russian fliers and planes to be found in the Chinese army . . . of course, the Japanese may be credited with being prophetic, too, because they have been drilling the residents of Formosa on what to do when bombed . . . okay, what DO you do?

Nomination for most-burning-cartoon: the one in yesterday's Chicago Trib that shows, in the upper panel, a stone column on which are inscribed the phrases: "Roosevelt Theory of Gov't" and "Spend Your Way to Prosperity." Below are the initials "FDR," partially obscured by huge sums of money.

The bottom panel shows the same stone column, with the same initials. Vultures are to be seen in the background. The money is gone and reveals the "FDR" to stand for "Failure, Debt, Recession."

Entitled "His Monument," this cartoon is the height of something.

Out in the midwest we may well grumble about the mismatching of the Louis-Mann slaughter. But at least we didn't have to pay anything for seats.

ONCE IN A MILLION DEPARTMENT

Comes the story of the group from Appleton that went to Oshkosh to play bridge this week. New decks of cards were produced and bidding started. One deck, it happened was passed twice, but the third time it ran the gauntlet, some bidding was really forthcoming.

"One no trump," offered the declarer. "Three spades," replies his partner who had a tough hand, too.

"Four spades," said the original bidder.

"Six spades," announced the partner and the contract was ready for play. Out came the first lead. Down went the dummy's hand. The partner surveyed it carefully and stared in astonishment. He blinked. Then he tossed in his hand which was a cold grand slam.

Yessir, there were two aces of spades in that brand new, unplayed deck. And no deuce.

Reminding me that the best bridge hand I ever got in my life turned out to be a misdeal.

A WIFE IS THE LESSER STAR

Behind each brilliant star, a lesser star is shining with a sympathetic light. It does not throw its humble beams as far . . . We cannot see it in the darkness night.

And yet the star that shines upon the hill Would be less bright without the constancy Of its supporting star. . . Perhaps you will Admit my love has this same quality! (Copyright, 1938)

A CASE FOR POPEYE THE SAILOR

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

HEALTH

In 1886 Dr. Reginald Fitz of Boston put appendicitis on the map. He didn't exactly discover the disease, but by his contribution clarified our understanding of it and the proper treatment. Of course people had been dying of "inflammation of the bowels" (peritonitis) for many generations before physicians learned to diagnose the illness at its inception and to rescue the victim before the inflammation spreads beyond control.

In the gay nineties, when I was a medical student, there were two salient features in our village, viz., Auntie Bindle, who I suppose always had been, and Dr. Bigone, who opened the first hospital in the community. Dr. Big-one was right up to snuff; he operated on the first appendicitis cases in that part of the world and successfully. One case, that of a prominent young woman, came to operation a bit late—after many days of ice-bag treatment, opiates, and the like. This patient succumbed following operation. Auntie Bindle promptly made the circuit with the inside facts. It seemed that when the "butchers" opened her up they found her innards frozen solid and of course could do nothing under the circumstances. Now Auntie could have saved that girl with plenty of hot flaxseed tea and castor oil, but folks just hadn't enough sense to call on Auntie in such emergencies.

In auntie's heyday no one had ever heard of appendicitis. It was just stomach ache then. There are lots of people even now who, not having had appendicitis, profess to believe it is more or less a fad of the doctors, for otherwise why didn't we hear more about it when we were young?

For all I know, appendicitis may be actually more prevalent today than it was fifty or a hundred years ago, under whatever name. Or it may be less prevalent today than it was thirty or forty years ago (I believe it is somewhat less common now). There are two contributing factors or causes of appendicitis which depend on how you live. First, focal infection, that is, Pneumococcus or Streptococcus infection of the adenoid or round cell (lymphoid) tissue in the base of the appendix secondary to acute or chronic tonsillitis or throat infection. Second, a prolonged or habitual shortage of vitamins in the diet, particularly vitamins B, G and D. Both of these factors depend on how you live and so appendicitis may be more or less frequent in one generation or country or community than in another.

Sinusitis is another ailment which was unknown under this name a generation or two ago. But in those days such vague complaints as "catarrh" and "neuritis" were familiar enough. Doctors today recognize that in many cases the actual trouble is inflammation or infection of one or more of the air-spaces in the head bones and apply a more definite name to the complaint, that is all.

Dr. Brady will answer all signed letters pertaining to health. Writers' names are never printed. Only inquiries of general interest will be answered by mail if written in ink and a stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Requests for diagnosis or treatment of individual cases cannot be considered. Address Dr. William Brady, 265 El Camino, South, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Your Birthday

"PISCES"

If February 26 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a. m. until noon; from 2 to 4 p. m., and from 8 to 10 p. m. The danger periods are from 8 to 10 a. m., from 6 to 8 p. m., and from 10 p. m. until midnight.

You may receive a pleasant reminder of someone's deep affection for you this day. Retrospective thoughts may be responsible for a prevailing tendency, on the part of some of your friends, to recall many past pleasant experiences. Avoid being abrupt if you do not wish to offend someone whose favor is worth having. Brevity may be the soul of wit, but it can, on occasions, be the cause of many phrases sounding soulless, especially on this day. Be careful that misplaced sympathy does not weaken a good resolution and sow the seeds of trouble. This is a day when it will be advisable to count the cost of any invitation before you too glibly extend it. A fair exchange is no robbery providing it doesn't cause somebody to suffer, so consider carefully the consequences of any reciprocal action you might contemplate. Married and engaged couples and those who hope to announce their engagement soon, must not try to force an answer to any embarrassing question, this day if they would avoid receiving a reply they are not likely to relish.

If a woman and February 26 is your birthday, it will pay you to remember names and faces. Absent-mindedness, with you, is apt to be simply a lack of concentration. You ought to have an optimistic nature, that future events are more than likely to justify. As a modern Fortia, artist, architect, interior decorator, teacher, journalist or broker your results may be enviable. A happy home and family life ought to be the result of your marriage. The child born on February 26 generally can adapt itself easily to strange environments and people. Inclined to be friendly, its popularity will help make it an outstanding figure in school and social circles. The degree of success it attains, after it reaches its majority, will depend largely upon the amount of effort put forth in furthering any cherished ambition.

If a man and February 26 is your natal day, you ought to have sufficient strength of character to enable you to overcome any faults. You probably have the qualifications required to become a successful lawyer, theologian, educator, writer, actor, clergyman, inventor or business man.

As an inducement to farmers to obey the quotas, they are offered loans on wheat they carry over. For wheat growers there also is crop insurance. No other crop gets it yet. Growers pay the premiums with wheat. If the crop partly or wholly fails, the $100,000,000 insurance organization set up in the bills repays each farmer 50 to 75 per cent of the amount he lost. He hopes this doesn't sound too complex. If it does, consult your county agent.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY GEORGE TUCKER

New York—Billy Rose, the perennial Falry Godmother of Broadway, tore off a chicken wing and stripped it down to the bone. Can't interviews never face Billy when he is at table. He talks faster over bib-and-tucker than across a conference board. And, Bud, that's fast.

"Well, Butch, when you've got your Cesa Manana going with its 50-grand net and its tuncful trinkets—what next?"

A. "Suppose I ask you a question; suppose you were nuts about gold. I don't mean money. I mean that raw stuff that comes out of the ground and makes old sourdoughs sport alkali dust! Well, suppose there was a Museum of Gold! Wouldn't you give your eye-teeth to see, say, the first nugget that ever came out of the Klondike, a piece of the actual metal that was in Sheba's crown, perhaps even some of that gold the Wise Men had with their frankincense and myrrh?"

Q. "Mother of Pearl! Don't tell me you've . . ."

A. "Not so fast, me bairn, but it's almost as good. Almost! Hell, it's better. I'm gonna put Broadway into a Museum. I'm gonna bring back the little old sentimental Broadway of the Curcuses and the Diamond Jims. I'm going to resurrect the real Tin Pan Alley and reenact all the famous Broadway murders—the Starr Faithful, the Dot King, and the Rothstein murders. I'm gonna collect that string of elephants that Ziegfeld gathered from every country in the world, if I can get Billie Burke to sell 'em or rent 'em to me. I'm gonna collect original manuscripts of the best songs Broadway composers ever wrote."

Q. "Where's this gonna be, Billy?"

A. "Can't say yet; I've got four buildings under consideration. But I can tell you this. That whole thing will be one continuous mass of electric bulbs. I got the idea from the Pacific Gas and Electric building in Denver and it's a knock-out. I'll blind Broadway."

Q. "One thing more—how long'll it take you to assemble all this?"

A. "I ought to have three years, but I've only got seven months. We open in the fall, and just thinking about it makes me awfully tired. Come on, let's go rest up in a movie."

Political Bosses Seek Control Over Primary Election

Candidates for State Jobs Hand-Picked by New Deal, Lawrence Says

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington—Somewhere in the dim and distant past, the Democratic party used to make a fuss about the "Rule of the People," and there was much ado about the primary system, because a set of "bosses" would dominate political conventions and virtually dictate the nominations. Likewise, in the dim and distant past, "wicked" Republicans used to meet in smoke-filled rooms and hand out nominations which the people were expected to ratify.

Today, the White House is the scene of this same kind of meeting. Maybe the rooms aren't smoke-filled and maybe the physical personalities no longer resemble the Penroses and the Quays or the Hannas, but the bosses are there just the same, deciding what nominees the people may have permission to vote for and what offices shall be apportioned to the various custodians of political power.

Thus, in the state of Pennsylvania, it has been assumed that the primary system was for the people to utilize, but now the bosses gather around the president and he is to decide just what the state ticket shall be and who shall be the senatorial nominee.

Over in Kentucky, Mr. Roosevelt has intervened, too, and in New York state he has already selected a candidate for governor whom the office-holders, relief workers and recipients of federal bounties and favors are expected to support.

Old Parties Defend It
This is 1938 political realism with a vengeance. The old-fashioned politicians see nothing wrong with it. Staunch Republicans as well as reactionary Democrats will defend it as a better method of keeping party harmony than primary fighting, with their factional damage. But the Progressives—the people who eschew any party label that stands for the rule of the few against the rule of the many—are still believers in the idea that nominations should be made by the rank and file of the party and not by a small group of politicians who pull the strings.

The people of Pennsylvania will have an opportunity to repudiate this effort to tell them whom they may nominate, for it looks as if Gifford Pinchot, veteran Progressive, will be the Republican nominee for governor—an indication, indeed, that the Republicans are ready in the Keystone state to accept Progressive leadership.

What makes the White House conference so depressing is the fact that an administration which calls itself "liberal" and leaders who claim to represent the highest purposes of a democracy have so little confidence in the capacity of the people to do their own choosing of candidates that they are anxious to put forth a hand-picked slate behind which the federal steam roller can be applied.

It had enough for a group of politicians to attempt to control the nominating machinery of a political party in the state or the nation, but it is much worse when that same small group has in its hand a broad power over government funds and the distribution of political offices.

Pennsylvania is Example
Pennsylvania affords an example of a thoroughly regimented political party. The state Democratic organization has merely copied there the highly distasteful methods of the old Republican party; indeed, some of the old Republican henchmen are now key men in the local Democratic organizations, showing that the people are being misused by the same bunch of professionals that exploited them under Republican rule.

If the New Deal had not made such pretensions of virtue and if it had not posed as the "people's government," the spectacle of a White House conference to decide what nominee shall go on the party ticket in various states would not be so hard to swallow. The decision of the Roosevelt administration, however, to engage in all the primary fights and select favorites, as now seems probable, judging by what is happening with respect to the gubernatorial nominations in Pennsylvania and New York, respectively, is clear proof that politics has raised its selfish banner over the New Deal, transforming it, for all practical purposes, into the same old deal of yesterday.

Women Crowd Shopping Districts for Dollar Day Bargains

These pictures of shoppers crowded into stores and women loaded down with bundles are graphic proof of the success of yesterday's Dollar Day in Appleton stores. Outstanding values and ideal weather caused thousands of women to flock into the shopping district and merchants generally reported sales way above last year.

The picture at upper left shows women trying to take advantage of stocking bargains in one of the city's stores; at upper right is another group of women eager to take advantage of merchandise offerings, while lower left shows a group, finished with their day's shopping, hurrying home with their bundles. It was a happy day for both merchants and shoppers. (Post-Crescent Photos)

Wise to Let People Be Happy in Their Own Way

BY ANGELO PATRI
Letting people be happy in their own way is something of an achievement of mind over nature. There seems to be a dictator born in every one of us. We want to tell all and each how to do and what and when. The fact that our own lives do not show the advantage of such wisdom as we offer does not appear to touch us. We keep on telling other people how to succeed, how to be happy, how to be just like us. And the unfortunate cannot be like us, not if they tried forever and aye. Why not let them alone to be happy in their own way?

This sort of advice, this longing for power over the minds and the persons of others, have caused trouble and sorrow and death and destruction through the ages. Yet we don't seem to learn. Mothers tell their daughters exactly what they ought to do, and fathers do the same by their sons and daughters. Neighbors are quick to advise and to criticize harshly when their advice is not taken although they cannot have any understanding of the actual conditions. So it goes, and so the battle between youth and age rages through the years.

When children are young enough to be completely dependent, parents and teachers have to do the thinking for them. But that process, that giving of self to others, must come to an end, and the earlier the better for the children. Gradually the little ones grow in strength of body, and mental power should keep time with that growth. It will if people do not insist upon looking inside the child and pulling his strings to make him go.

Adolescent children suffer the most from such mishandling. They have grown a personality of their own; they have arrived at some conclusions of their own, and they

Exercise No. Longer Is Limited to Summertime

BY ELSIE PIERCE
Very often I get welcome, chatty letters from readers volunteering information and casting a very gratifying light on the American scene.

For instance, one reader writes "I've lived in big cities, traveled a good deal and now, for business reasons, we have settled down in a charming, comparatively small community. I know that through the winter men exercise several times a day—playing squash—getting a good workout in a gymnasium. I know, too, that women are fast catching up with the men, that exercise is no longer limited to summer alone, that nearly every Fifth Avenue beauty salon now have a squash and badminton courts.

There are no such salons in our little city, no clubs offering gymnasiums or luxurious exercise apparatus. So a few in our group, among us a young matron who used to be a health education teacher and knows a great deal about gymnasium work, decided that instead of playing bridge, or merely getting together for tea or luncheon, why couldn't we have a Gym and Health circle? Why couldn't we indeed! We now have it!"

Turn Game Room Into Gym
"Most of the private homes here have what we call finished cellars, which are used for card or game room. Now many of them boast dumbbells, medicine balls, jumping ropes, badminton sets, ping pong tables.

"I'm writing this to you because I am sure it will please you to know that the big business of beauty is fast finding its way into little cities. In fact, with no little egotism, I say: 'How many women in big cities can boast a good-looking club like ours?'"

My complete booklet "Reduce by Exercise" (Booklet 202) is yours for ten cents. It covers the subject thoroughly. Send for it, giving your name and full address to the

Good Taste Today

HUSBAND, WIFE PROBLEMS

Dear Mrs. Post: My husband does not like to carve. He has always protested and I have humored him by having the roast put before me. This is my second married year and we have not been married yet. I have not as yet had an opportunity of having any people to dinner. I'm wondering now just what effect my carving, instead of my husband's, will have on guests? Do you know of other situations where this is the order of the house? We have a maid, but she cooks and does everything. One thing more. We have no electric buzzer from the dining room to kitchen and can not have one installed just now. Do you think it better to have a bell on the table or just to call to the maid?

Answer: I can remember one house in which the wife did the carving at the table, and her husband was one of America's most famous authors of yesterday. What's more, they had plenty of servants. But everybody looked upon it as an idiosyncrasy of his and took it as more or less of a joke. I have never seen it done in any other house. In other words, I think it does seem rather as though the wife were the breeches. And yet, in this day when many women actually wear slacks and shorts a good deal of the time I don't see why this reversal should seem so out of the way. I don't know why you cannot have an electric buzzer installed. An electrician would hardly consider it much of a job and it certainly would cost little more, if anything, than to buy a suitable bell for the table. In any case, it is much better to have a bell on the table than to call.

Dear Mrs. Post: I am a very old lady, and according to the expressions of my children and grandchildren

Wrong Bid Wins Hand For Player

BY ELY CULBERTSON
(A Tragic-Comedy in One Act.)
Scene: A bridge table.
Time: The present.

Characters.
Mr. and Mrs. Hornett, respectively West and East. (What they think of each other's bridge is unprintable, and they're both right!) Mrs. Blank, North, and Mr. Meek, South.

Mrs. Blank (coquettishly): Now, partner, dear, both sides vulnerable and we simply must take the rubber! Remember, we're only eight thousand, four hundred and ten points ahead.

Mr. Hornett: Of course, we all understand you mean "approximately." You're so careless about odd points.

Mr. Meek (hastily): My deal!

As usual, Mr. Meek gets a little riddy upon picking up a big hand. He intends to open up with "three hearts," but, to his horror, hears himself say, "three spades," and, before he can correct the misnomer, Mr. Hornett steps in with a resounding "double!" The bidding then proceeds as follows:

South West North East
Spades Double: Pass Pass
4 hearts 5 diam'ds 5 hearts 6 diam'ds
6 hearts 7 diam'ds 7 hearts Double
Pass Pass

Mr. Hornett viciously slaps down the king of diamonds and, from that point on, the defenders can do nothing more constructive than moaning and groaning. Mr. Meek, still quivering from his initial slip of the tongue, does not require much composure to ruff the opening lead, draw the one outstanding trump, and discard dummy's spades on his own long clubs. Feeling like a pickpocket, Mr. Meek then nervously spreads his hand, revealing the two spades. Mr. and Mrs. Hornett stare at them silently, then.

Mrs. Hornett (to Mr. Hornett): This is the end! I've played my last game as your partner! I'd rather join the circus and be shot out of a cannon!

Mr. Hornett: I strongly approve that idea. The job just fits your mental capacity! May I point out, Snow White, that it was you who doubled seven hearts?

Mrs. Hornett: Well, we could have taken two spade tricks, couldn't we? Of course, I should have realized that it would be a major miracle if you were to lead the right suit!

Mr. Hornett: O, sure! A spade lead was marked! I was supposed to know that Meek, of all people, had psyched in spades!

Mr. Meek (slightly insulted): I didn't psyche. The spade bid just slipped out!

Mr. Hornett: Some slip! (He thinks for a moment.) Jumping jolly fish! We could have made seven spades against anything but a diamond opening by North. It would have been cold against any lead if my esteemed partner had become declarer!

Mrs. Hornett: O, I'm sorry, dear! Of course I should have bid seven spades!

Difficult to Determine Best Way to Pick Husband

BY DOROTHY DIX
Some women marry on the trail-and-error plan and when they get husbands they don't like they take them back and swap them for others who generally don't give any better satisfaction than the first ones did. Other women marry on the grabbag principle. They shut their eyes and take the first men who come along. Both of these methods of getting a husband have their points and counterpoints.

But suppose a girl takes marriage seriously and belongs to the old-fashioned, untold-death-do-us-part school of thought on the subject. By what signs and tokens shall she know that a man will make the kind of a husband she will want to keep instead of one she will want to trade in at the first opportunity? There are so many liabilities to check against any man's assets that it is hard to tell whether one will be a good investment or a total loss.

If, for instance, A girl marries a handsome man, she will go through life presenting an invidious comparison to him and hearing people say behind her back: "Why on earth do you suppose that good-looking married that little tramp?" Also she will have to wear herself to skin and bones ministering to his vanity. He will pre-empt nine-tenths of the clothes allowance for his own adornment, and patronize the best tailors while she haunts the bargain basements.

If she marries a great lover, she will eat her heart out in jealousy, for she will soon find out that the man who has a gift for making love to women in a beautiful and romantic way does not waste his art on any one woman—least of all on his wife. The men who are devils among the ladies are usually devils to live with.

If she marries a good provider, he feels that he has done his full duty in giving her a good house to live in, a charge account at the best stores, a new car every other year and a trip every summer. It never even occurs to him that a woman could starve for love, tenderness and companionship, or that she needs a few white hyacinths to feed her soul instead of so much fillet mignon for her body; that she would rather have a kiss that wasn't a peck on the cheek than another emerald bracelet.

If she marries a business man, she discovers that she has committed unintentional bigamy. For the woman to whom he is really espoused is the lady on the dollar and the wife always runs a poor second to her. She will never raise the thrill in his breast that a ten-point rise in stocks does.

If she marries a domestic man, he is likely to be one of those fireside sitters who thinks that all the diversion that a wife needs after a hard day with the children, the cookstove and the vacuum cleaner

If she marries a lawyer, she is likely to die of the pangs of unsatisfied curiosity because she knows he knows the details of so many juicy scandals that she can't worm out of him.

If she marries a doctor, she will live on one end of a telephone wire and he will always be called away to a patient just as they are starting out to dinner or the theater or a party to which she had set her heart on going. Also, she will have her eyes turn permanently green by suspicions of the neurotic ladies in pink silk and lace negligees whose chief amusement is in sending for the doctor and having him hold their hands while they describe their symptoms.

If she marries a preacher, she has to listen to advice from all the old sisters who tell her how she should dress and raise her children, and she will have to compete with all the young sisters who tell the clergyman how wonderful he is and make the salvation of their souls an alibi for flirtations.

If she marries a man who is stingy about money, she has to scrimp out of him. If she marries a man who throws it away, she has to stand off the bill collector. So what is a poor girl to do?

WOMEN DON'T RESPECT
Washington (17)—Travel abroad all you like, young lady, but don't try to outsmart the customs bureau when you come back.
The men aren't much trouble, one customs official here says. But the women, he contends, "seem naturally disposed toward petty smuggling." To back up this opinion he points to bureau seizures of $60,327 worth of wearing apparel in 1937—most of it, he says, from women who thought they could smile their way past the blue-uniformed men on the docks.

If you could drill a hole clear through the earth, the end of the hole would be somewhere in the Indian ocean, or in western Australia. The exact place would depend on the exact part of North America you live in.

Before I left on my journey around the world, I spoke of a man who lived in a lake so deep that he finished his dive on the other side of the world, and cabled to Ireland for his clothes.

"How many reasons," I asked, "can you give why such a thing could not happen?"

One reason, of course, is that the man would drown. Another is that he probably would pass through such hot places that he would roast, or be boiled, to death. Even if the tunnel were filled only with air, the man could not fall clear through it. The rubbing of the air would slow his fall. If he dropped some distance past the earth's center, gravity would pull him back.

Down here in the torrid zone, the night sky contains many stars which we see at home. The great constellation of Orion is almost overhead. Some stars, on the other hand, have gone "out of sight."

Taking the place of those stars are others not seen by people in the north temperate zone. There is, for example, the famous Southern Cross. The Southern Cross is composed of four bright stars

Kuehl Herd Leads Milk Production During January

Averages 54.6 Pounds of Butterfat in Waupaca County Association

Waupaca — With an average of 54.6 pounds of butterfat the 12-cow herd of Martin Kuehl ranked high in production in the Herd Improvement association, according to Ismar Jacobson and Robert Searl, testers.

"Folkman", a grade Holstein cow owned by Ernest Thoma and Sons led in the individual production with 1978 pounds of milk containing 61.1 pounds of butterfat. A registered Holstein owned by A. E. Smith, Waupaca, was close second with 2,310 pounds of milk or 89.9 pounds of butterfat.

Highest ranking herds in the north group were those of A. E. Smith, Waupaca; Leon Jacklin, Lind; Floyd Gotham, Dayton; Biederman Bros., Jola; and J. P. Jensen and Sons, Scandinavia. High herds in the southern association were those of Martin Kuehl, Celodonia; Charles Hanke, Fremont; Ernest Thoma and Sons, Lebanon; county asylum, Royallton; Ernest Montgomery, Waupaca; William Kissing, Waupaca; John Jensen, Waupaca; and Almo Larson, Farmington.

Production in general was higher than in previous months. Forty-three cows produced above 50 pounds of butterfat, twenty produced above 60 pounds and two above 80 pounds.

Owners of cows producing 50 or more pounds of butterfat during the month were A. E. Smith, J. P. Jensen and Sons; Hugh Johnson, Leon Jacklin, Floyd Gotham, Ernest Thoma and Sons, Martin Kuehl, James Christensen, county asylum, C. V. Peterson, and thus, Biederman Bros., August Larsen, Mrs. O. F. Peterson and Son, Carl Borchardt, John Jensen, Robert Bork, A. G. Neuman, George Peter, county poor farm, Carroll Ritchie, A. W. Ritchie, Ernest Montgomery, William Kissing, Miller and Sosinske and Almo J. Larson.

New Varieties of Apples Must Face Stiff Competition

Easier to Popularize Different Color Strain of Old Favorite

Most farmers and fruit growers are keenly interested in new and improved strains and varieties of crops, but apple growers usually are exceptions, according to John R. Magnus of the federal department of agriculture in a bulletin to R. C. Swanson, Outagamie county agent.

Apple orchards, Magnus explains, are usually a 40-to-50-year crop, and thus, apple varieties change slowly as compared to varieties of other agricultural crops.

The Winesap, Magnus points out, is still one of the most popular apple varieties—and 200 years old.

Rome Beauty was introduced in 1848. Delicious, only 42 years old, is relatively a newcomer. Johnathan is in its second century of recognized value and McIntosh was first propagated in 1870. Staygreen Winesap dates back to 1875 and York Imperial to 1890. Rhode Island Greening is probably at least 200 years in the orchards and still popular in northern areas.

It is easier to introduce and popularize a new color strain of an old and tested orchard favorite than to launch a new variety, and there have been several popular color sports in recent years.

Improved transportation and marketing in the cities in carload lots are factors that influence growers to select well-tested apples that have made a place for themselves and have acquired a reputation for quality. They have an assured place and demand is reliable.

Need 2 Years to Make Safe Chicken Range

Clean range for young chickens is good insurance, according to H. L. Shrader, United States department of agriculture, in a bulletin to R. C. Swanson, Outagamie county agricultural agent. Clean range, however, does not mean mere neatness and removal of scrapes and refuse. Shrader points out, time, he says, is the cleaning factor and takes two years to make a range clean enough to be safe.

Shrader defines a clean range as "one that has been free of chicken parasites for at least two years and one on which poultry manure has not been spread." In two years, poultry parasites will die for lack of a chance to multiply. A clean range free of parasites, gives young chickens a chance to grow without a handicap.

An ideal range, Mr. Shrader adds, also supplies plenty of shade and hot summer months and an abundant supply of succulent green feed and fresh water.

24 of Leading 50 Dairy Counties in United States Found in Wisconsin

When the yearly summary of dairy manufactures is completed it will show that Wisconsin is again a leader in cheese production and condenser products and that great quantities of butter and other dairy items are made each year in Wisconsin. R. C. Swanson, Outagamie county agricultural agent, has been informed.

According to the crop reporting service of the Wisconsin and United States Departments of Agriculture, the state has 24 of the 50 counties that rank the highest in milk production and milk cow numbers in the United States. Dodge and Dane counties are among the five highest counties in milk production. Although these two counties are close together the census figures give the higher level of milk output to Dodge county.

Other counties in the state which rank high in milk production are as follows: Clark, Marathon, Fond du Lac, Green, Sheboygan, Manitowish, Walworth, Waukesha, Jefferson, Rock, Outagamie, Barron, Chippewa, Grant, Shawano, Vernon, Brown, Dunn, Sauk, Iowa, Waupaca, and Washington.

In 1937 Wisconsin had an estimated output of 11,378,000,000 pounds of milk, which is a little less than the previous year. The state's crop reporting service now is receiving the reports of dairy manufactures from the dairy plants of the state. Only a very few of the 3,000 reports are still outstanding and when these are received the 1937 figures on manufactured dairy products in the state will become available.

Small Game Can Return Profit From Poor Land

Rural residents may do well to consider the possibility of producing wildlife on their land, a bureau of biological survey bulletin to R. C. Swanson, Outagamie county agricultural agent, states.

Marginal, submarginal, and wild lands usually provide the essential wildlife needs—cover, food, and water—and do not require the attention that better types of land do. Yet, these lands when properly managed may even return more to the owner in the production of small game than if he had put them to other agricultural uses.

On the better farming lands more attention must be given to providing suitable conditions for wildlife and to controlling hunting. Hunting and trapping must be controlled to assure the production of adequate breeding stocks and to protect farm property against damage. This usually entails considerable effort and in most cases necessitates farmers cooperating among themselves and with other agencies.

Advertise State Dairy Products In Booklet Form

Distribution Is Being Made Throughout the United States

The state department of agriculture and markets this week made available for national distribution 100,000 new dairy recipe booklets, 500,000 butter and cheese folders and 225,000 special cheese price cards, according to a bulletin received by R. C. Swanson, county agricultural agent.

The new materials are being distributed in conjunction with the department's dairy advertising program. Each printed piece is designed to assist in the merchandising of Wisconsin dairy products.

Entitled "101 Smart Ways to Serve Wisconsin Cheese and Butter," the recipe booklet consists of more than 50 illustrated pages of tested dairy dishes. Five by three inches in size, it can be easily filed in a cabinet box with other recipes. Its use will be made of the booklet in answering responses to advertisements inserted by the department in national magazines.

The cheese price cards were designed as a merchandising help to retailers. As a matter of convenience in displaying these attention-getters on pieces of cheese, a toothpick is attached to each. The cards not only reveal the price per pound but tell whether the cheese on sale is mild, mellow, nippy, or sharp—brick or Swiss.

The new butter and cheese folders will be used for various purposes. They suggest the use of Wisconsin creamery butter for cooking and as a spread because of its superior vitamin content, explain the dating system used in the manufacture of Wisconsin cheese, and tell how consumers can buy cheese suited to their tastes.

SALMON FIND WAY HOME
Hayward, Calif. (AP) — It was years ago that a barricade stopped the annual salmon run up San Lorenzo creek. Since then there have been many generations of salmon but they have not been able to get through. But now that the barricade's down, fishermen here declare some ancient instinct has led today's salmon back. A bona fide salmon run has been occurring on each high tide, they report.

Dairymen to Hold Annual Gathering

2-Day State Conclave Will Be Held at Eau Claire March 31-April 1

Progress in the improvement of dairy cattle and the dairy industry in general will be stressed on March 31 and April 1 by speakers of national prominence on the program for the sixty-sixth annual convention at Eau Claire of the Wisconsin Dairymen's association.

A large number of dairymen from Outagamie county are expected to attend the sessions. Glen Householder, extension director of the Holstein-Friesian association of America, will be toastmaster at the banquet on the evening of March 31. Prof. J. B. Fitch, head of the dairy department of Minnesota university, will talk on "Dairy Cows and Dairy Men." Prof. J. G. Hays, extension dairyman of Michigan State college, will discuss "Feeding the World's Record Cow." Wilbur G. Carlson, of the state department of agriculture and markets, will present special awards.

Pointing out that 6,000,000 acres of Wisconsin's best farm land badly needs lime, Chapman warned farmers that they must shift more land to soil conserving crops.

"Unless something is done right away to stop these losses, unless we shift more of our land from soil-depleting to soil-conserving crops, unless we resort to the use of more fertilizers and lime in maintaining a balanced state of fertility, the future prosperity of farmers in Wisconsin is in real jeopardy."

Albert Krueger is president of the association. William H. Jahneke is manager and trucker. Walter Techlin and Walter Pingel are directors in addition to the officers.

55 Candidates Enter Race for 16 Oshkosh Posts

Former Aldermen File Nomination Papers for Seats on Council

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau — As the deadline passed Wednesday night, Feb. 23, at 10 o'clock for the filing of nomination papers, exactly 55 Oshkosh residents were listed as candidates for the 16 positions as Aldermen on the common council.

The primary election here will be held March 15, with many candidates listed in some wards but no primary scheduled because of lack of candidates in the Fourth ward, Fifth ward, Seventh ward, Thirteenth ward. This is because three candidates or more must file to assure a primary election.

Entering the final election, two candidates will be selected at the primary, although in one Oshkosh ward, the seventh, only one candidate has appeared. That is the present Alderman, Joseph L. Mierse. If any opposition should develop in that ward, the name of the candidate would have to be written on the ballot.

In the First ward, Alderman Nathan Marden did not file to run for reelection. It has been rumored he was interested in running for mayor next spring.

First ward candidates include Thomas C. Cotter, who is first ward supervisor now; Carl E. Welk, Edwin M. Sheppard and Guy E. Jensen.

Four in 2nd Ward — Four candidates have also appeared in the Second ward. They include Alderman Walter Tank, former Alderman Arthur C. Miller, Harvey Holzer and Harry J. Lindley.

Three candidates have filed papers in the Third ward. They are Alderman George Steinhilber, Edwin H. Kargus, and Frank J. Stopper.

In the Fourth ward there will be no primary as Alderman H. H. Priebe is opposed by only one candidate, Harvey Tyriver. The same is true of the Fifth ward where Alderman Joseph Seftengren will be opposed by John G. Diehl.

In the Sixth ward three candidates have appeared. They are Alderman Otto Lemke, Maurice Herrie and Joseph F. Weisheipl, former county supervisor.

In the Seventh ward Joseph Mierse is unopposed.

In the Eighth ward five candidates will seek the voters' favor. They are Alderman A. Loscher, who is also eighth ward supervisor; Ralph E. Caniff, Carl Muza, Norman C. Altman and Joseph G. Masterson.

In the Ninth ward three candidates seek to displace Alderman Carl R. Robertson. Besides Alderman Robert Otto M. Mueller, Kenneth W. Cross, and Bernard J. Kriz will make the run.

In the Tenth ward three candidates have appeared. They are Alderman Richard E. Germer, Edward A. Precour and Philip B. Truesdell. Truesdell is a former Alderman from the Tenth ward.

Former Alderman to Run — In the Eleventh ward Alderman Paul Sitter will find among his opponents a former Alderman, Wayne C. MacDonald. Besides this duo, George H. Gobrecht and Martin H. Kilz will run.

Three candidates are listed for the Twelfth ward. They are Alderman William Manser, Arthur E. Grundy, Jr., and Edmund J. Plier. Alderman Joseph Poeschl will be opposed by Frank C. Jungwirth, Jr., in the thirteenth ward.

In the fourteenth ward a battle is seen between Alderman Carl F. Fiegelberg former Alderman Louis Voelkel and Frank Gratto.

The biggest crop of candidates in any ward appeared in the fifteenth with eight listed. Alderman Sam Hunter is not seeking reelection. The candidates are Howard N. Howe, who is county supervisor and secretary of the Winnebago County Democratic club; George Ahlenberger, Harry P. Stoffels, member of the police and fire board; Marshall H. Drown, John C. Fabrych, Fred H. Lucksinger, William Kempf, and Jake J. Meyer.

In the sixteenth ward, four candidates are: Alderman Geo. Schurman, Conrad Langlitz, Albert Spiering and Fred Gerstmeier.

Streamliners Hold Top Place in League

Menasha — The Streamliners set the second place team back two games to maintain their lead in the Marathon girls' league at the Hendy alleys Thursday night. Kitchin of the Prestix collected high game and series for the evening with 194 and 536 marks.

The Streamliners had games of 644, 638 and 564 for 1,846 for their two wins over the Prestix, whose scores were 617, 552 and 662 for 1,831.

The Parakotes took three games from the Snappy Packets. Game scores were 541, 542 and 604 for 1,687 for the Coaxex and 623, 572 and 565 for 1,760 for the Pak-Aids.

Pak-Aids shoved the Consteck team further in the cellar by taking two games of their series. Game scores were 541, 542 and 604 for 1,687 for the Coaxex and 623, 572 and 565 for 1,760 for the Pak-Aids.

City Officials Bowl For Title but Final Score Is Questioned

Menasha — Harold Berro, water and light cashier; Edward C. McKenzie, city attorney; and Alderman Earl Sauter are claiming the city of bowling championship as the result of a victory at the Hendy alleys Thursday by an undetermined score over the team composed of C. A. Heckrodt, city treasurer; Theodore Beach, bookkeeper; and H. O. Haugh, city health officer.

A score sheet, purported to be authentic was presented but when the numerous games over 200 were questioned, 13 in 18 lines, the keepers refused to have the accuracy of the score notarized.

Veteran Neenah Alderman Will Not Seek Reelection

William Schmidt, President of Council, Says He Wants to Retire

Mr. Schmidt is president of the council, a member of the water works commission, chairman of the committee on public improvements and a member of the finance committee.

Alderman Schmidt said today his reason for quitting was: "I have been in office long enough and it is time I retire."

Alderman Walter J. Buschey will seek reelection for his second term as representative from the Third ward. It was announced today.

Other city officials who have indicated they will seek reelection are: W. H. Loehning, city treasurer; John Blenker, city assessor.

Mrs. H. J. C. Roseman will sing, accompanied at the piano by Miss Ruby Hart. Tea hostesses will be Mrs. Frank Dexter, Mrs. William Daniel and Mrs. S. E. Crockett.

Tomorrow's Child Will Live Longer While Women Will Outnumber the Men

BY ALEXANDER R. GEORGE

New York — (U) — We have yet to find the fabled fountain of youth, but the average American is becoming healthier and bigger, and is living longer.

Despite the fast tempo of life today, the automobile's appalling slaughter and new-fangled diseases, a child born in the United States this year has the prospect of living 12 years more than his parents had at birth.

And on the basis of continued conquest of disease the average child born 25 years hence will live 5 to 10 years longer than one born this year. The 1900 infant had a prospect of living until 49, and the 1963 baby to reach 61. The 1963 baby's life expectancy should be 66; perhaps 71.

Nation Of Graybeards? This increase, coupled with a declining birth rate, is enlarging the proportion of elderly persons in our population. But don't be afraid that we soon will be a nation of graybeards. The change within the next century will be scarcely perceptible.

Ner is soft living and machine age strain making Americans deteriorate physically. College boys and girls of today are taller and heavier than those of the last generation.

LENGTH OF LIFE — This table shows the increase in the average life expectancy of American infants. The 1789 and 1855 figures are of Massachusetts babies because Massachusetts was the only state whose figures for the early days of the republic are considered fairly accurate.

Year Born Life Expectancy 1789 34 Years 1855 39 Years 1900 49 Years 1938 61 Years

In Rome, during the early Christian Era, the expectation of life at birth was about 20 to 25 years.

Medical science and hygiene virtually have conquered typhoid fever, diphtheria, malaria and smallpox. Scarlet fever, measles, whooping cough and similar diseases of childhood are much less malignant.

Surgical wizards build new blood "pipe lines" to the heart, take off tons of skulls to operate on the brain and perform "miracles" in building new stomachs as well as new faces. Wonder-working glandular treatments are still in their infancy and new secrets of vitamin values and the functions of body cells are still to be revealed.

War On Deadly 'Big Ten' — Medical authorities, now concentrating their attention on the Big Ten of death-dealing diseases that take their big toll among the middle aged and elderly predict spectacular gains in 25 years.

The Big Ten, in order of mortality rates, are: heart diseases, cancer, pneumonia, kidney diseases, cerebral hemorrhage, tuberculosis, malformation and diseases of early infancy, diabetes, influenza and syphilis.

U. S. medicine is marshaling powerful resources for the war on cancer, which takes some 137,000 lives yearly. The federal government, the American College of Surgeons, the American Medical Association, clubwomen and health officials are enlisted in the drive for early diagnosis, intensive research and improved treatment for "the great darkness."

FATAL DISEASES — Here are the ten diseases that take the highest toll of lives in the United States and the annual number of victims of each. The figures are from the Bureau of Census for 1935.

Disease Annual Toll Heart 312,000 Cancer 137,000 Pneumonia 104,000 Kidney Disease 103,000 Cerebral Hemorrhage 97,000 Tuberculosis 68,000 Diseases of Infancy 63,000 Diabetes 28,000 Influenza 27,000 Syphilis 11,000

Medical science, in the next 25 years, will concentrate its attack on this roster.

Help For The Poor — All of the Big Ten except cerebral hemorrhage, diabetes and appendicitis strike most often and hardest in the homes of the poor. Consequently the prospect is for more group effort to improve the health of the underprivileged.

Socialized medicine — and the agitation over it — is increasing. Meanwhile, our now slightly predominant male population is to become more feminine, the average woman living three years longer than the average man. Reasons: Women are believed to be "tougher" biologically than men (their metabolic processes are slower and they wear out less quickly) and they are more sheltered from occupational hazards.

In 1910 the ratio of males to females in the United States was 105.6 to 100. In 1930—the last census—the ratio was 102.7 males to 100 females. Women probably will outnumber men 25 years from now—unless the immigration bars are let down.

This entertainment will be sponsored by the Weyauwega Band Mothers and the proceeds will go toward purchasing more new uniforms for the high school band. Mrs. Fritz Bauer is chairman of this committee.

SCENE FROM CLARE MAJOR SHOW

The peace and tranquility of the lives of Mrs. Hartman and her daughter, Regina, before the Indian raids is illustrated in the scene above in which mother and daughter join in singing hymns. Misfortune and anxiety were to follow shortly, as will be told in the play, "The Captive Maid of Old Carlisle," which Clare Tree Major players will present at 3 o'clock next Tuesday afternoon at Lawrence Memorial chapel. Because of the nature of the play material, this production will be enjoyed by adults as well as children.

Clare Major Play Will be Staged at Chapel Tuesday

"THE Captive Maid of Old Carlisle," which will be presented by Clare Tree Major Children's Theater at 3 o'clock next Tuesday afternoon at Lawrence Memorial chapel under the auspices of Edison School Parent Teacher's association, is the true story of a child captured by Indians during the English-French Canadian war and separated from her family for 10 years.

Regina Hartman, the girl around whom the story is woven, was still while still a young child and was in the Indian camps for more than 10 years. Her mother searched diligently for her throughout the long years but heard no news of her. One of the conditions of peace when the war was ended was that all white women and children taken in the war should be returned from the Indian villages, and accordingly the fugitives were gathered together in one place so that friends and relatives could claim them. Often when children had been taken at an early age and had been with the Indians for some years recognition was almost impossible.

Thus when the returning captives were gathered at Pittsburgh, Mrs. Hartman went with other parents to try to find her Regina, but though the girl was among the captives neither recognized the other. Later children who had not been claimed were taken to Carlisle and again Mrs. Hartman, hoping against hope, went to look at those who had not been claimed, but again she was disappointed.

Colonel Boquet who had charge of the children felt quite sure that Regina was among the rescued, but most of the children, having been given Indian names when they had first been taken by their captors, had forgotten their family names. The colonel insisted that Mrs. Hartman sing some family song that might strike a chord of memory, and through that means Regina and her mother were reunited.

"The Captive Maid of Old Carlisle" with its Indian dances and ceremonies, its purely historical background and its interpretation of pioneer days, is theater for children at its best. History learned through such a dramatic medium is never forgotten for it makes the happenings of the beginnings of our nation vital, living realities.

The scene of the play is England and the action centers around No. 10 Downing street, home of the prime minister. The largest cast of any college production since "If Booth Had Missed," the play has 20 characters.

Milder Weather Is Approaching

Wind Switches to Southwest; Mercury at 29 This Afternoon

A southwest wind that sprung up today was the harbinger of warmer weather tonight and tomorrow forecast for Appleton and vicinity by the Milwaukee weather bureau.

Temperatures were higher than yesterday, the thermometer atop the Post-Crescent building registering 29 degrees at 12:30 this afternoon. By the 24-hour period ending at 9 o'clock this morning, the minimum in the city was 15 above at 7 o'clock this morning, and the maximum, 22, according to charts at the Wisconsin Michigan Power company plant.

which he appealed from a tax commission assessment of $60,000 on alleged unreported income of $283,000.

The appeal has been pending for more than a month and hearings are to be resumed Monday. Dinneen will present his side of the controversy.

Special state attorneys have attempted to trace to him approximately $63,000 of the $123,000 shown in the books of the H. S. Byllesby company as having been spent for salary and services in connection with the Chicago holding company's purchase of the Wisconsin Valley Electric company.

Admits Receiving Money

Although he admitted receiving $33,500 which state counsel said was part of the $63,000, Dinneen contended at previous hearings these payments were in the form of gifts from the loans—not income.

War Not Imminent, Professors State

At Forum Meeting American Far East Policy Subject of Discussion At Peabody Hall

Americans have no cause to fear that war involving this country is imminent, according to opinions expressed by three members of Lawrence college faculty last night at the Lawrence Alumni association forum in Peabody hall.

The three men, Dr. William F. Raney and Dr. Albert A. Trever of the history department and Donald M. DuShane, assistant professor of government, were speakers at the forum and led the open discussion.

Dr. Raney, who delivered background material on the forum discussing American relations in the Far East, told the crowd of more than 250 persons that present conditions did not indicate that this country need fear war. He said that if America adopts a program for a big navy, it should result in a definite agreement with Japan regarding American interests in the Orient.

Professor DuShane declared he did not believe Japan would willingly provoke America into a war. Even with an enlarged navy, America could not hope to defeat the Japanese in their waters, he stated. He told the forum assembly that America's present navy was adequate for defense.

Democracies of the world should seek cooperation for protection against dictatorships, Dr. Trever said.

The question of what action America should take regarding the Philippines brought considerable attention at the forum meeting.

NEVADA TRAGEDY

Reno, Nev.—(U)—Robert Hancock, 50-year-old California airplane pilot, was killed early today in a take-off crash that injured his employer, Adolph E. Spreckels, Jr., young San Francisco sugar heir.

Passengers in the plane with Spreckels were Lois Clarke De Ruyter Spreckels Clinton, his 26-year-old former wife; Mrs. Alex Young, 30, of San Francisco, and Rex Leslie, 33, San Francisco.

Dr. Louis Lombardi of St. Mary's hospital in Reno said Mrs. Clinton was the most seriously hurt. She suffered a serious head injury and possible internal injuries. The others suffered from cuts and bruises.

About 100 feet in the air the plane winged over and fell. It hit the ground with its motors racing and the fuselage buckled in the middle.

The party left San Francisco last night, arriving in Reno shortly after midnight. After spending the early morning here they were taking off at about 5 o'clock a. m. for San Francisco when the ship crashed.

Hancock, married only two months ago, had been flying in San Francisco bay area more than 12 years. He was Spreckels' private pilot.

The Spreckels plane was a twin-motored, six passenger Lockheed 12, one of the fastest commercial ships on the American market.

of suggestions for a single department of defense. He said the present system was working very well.

Another inquirer asked whether the president had noted any evidence of friction between the army and navy. Mr. Roosevelt, chuckling, said the services were working together better today than at any previous time.

At about the same time the president was talking, the navy's chief of aeronautics told congress that "airplanes have not supplanted ships."

Plan 950 New Planes

Rear Admiral Arthur B. Cook, testifying before the house naval committee on the proposed $1,050,000,000 expansion of the fleet, asserted the 950 new planes contemplated under the program would add another $105,000,000 to the total cost.

He said the projected enlargement of the navy amply justified the provision of additional planes. Launching at once into the controversy over the vulnerability of battleships to aerial attack, Cook said, "airplanes have not supplanted ships, but they have added tremendously to the power and efficiency of the fleet as a whole."

In response to questions by Representative Maas (R-Minn.) senior minority member of the committee, Cook warned the United States would "lose its lead in aviation, if it has not already done so," because foreign nations are spending so much money in aviation research.

Pershing Rallies But Condition Is Called Critical

a short time later Pershing's blood pressure was slightly better.

An unsuccessful attempt was made to get him to drink water. Intravenous feeding had been abandoned.

The physicians announced at 9:15 p. m. (U.S. S.T.) last night that General Pershing had lapsed into unconsciousness. Relatives were hastily summoned to the bedside.

Mrs. May Pershing, his only sister and devoted companion of recent years, spent much of the night sitting by the bed holding the general's hand.

Son Is Present

Warren Pershing, an only son, paced the corridors and occasionally stepped into the room for a glimpse at his father.

Sergeant Schaeffer sobbed: "I am soon going to lose the best friend in the world. I'll be saying goodbye and going back to Washington pretty quick now."

Indisposed since Feb. 5 and confined to his bed for 10 days, the commander of America's expeditionary forces in the World war held his own until Monday, when he suffered a sudden relapse.

First reports were that he suffered only from rheumatism, but physicians admitted after his removal to a hospital that a heart complication was the cause of alarm.

Once Hunted Apaches

Always a lover of the outdoors and the west, General Pershing turned in his last years to the land where he began his army career. He had spent his last six winters in Tucson and from his hotel window could look out over the mountains where he chased the wandering Apache Indians on his first assignment.

He made his last formal review of troops in January, 1937, at Ft. Huachuca, Ariz., standing with Colonel W. F. Robinson, commander of the 8th Infantry.

On his arrival this winter he was hoarse and suffering from cold. His usual morning horseback rides were eliminated, and his automobile trips were fewer and shorter, finally discontinued.

He did not visit Ft. Huachuca and when time came for the annual winter rodeo, to which he had invited two of his old cronies, General Charles G. Dawes and General James G. Harbord, he was confined to bed.

Special Pensions Are Suggested for Railroad Workers

Would Provide for Older Workers Losing Jobs Through Mergers

Washington—(U)—A high administration official suggested today that special pensions be added to the railroad retirement system, to take care of older workers who lose their jobs when railroads merge.

These pensions, he said, informally, might allay organized labor's fear of loss of livelihood and thereby facilitate consolidations designed to save money.

The present railroad retirement act provides pensions for employees of over 65, or over 60 in the case of workers with 30 years service.

The direct means of accomplishing mergers to end what President Roosevelt has called "wasteful competition" may be discussed at a White House conference within the next week or two.

Some officials are urging compulsory unification, but it was learned the administration also is studying the possibility of letting the roads carry out voluntary consolidations by hastening pending reorganization of 85 roads.

Plan Conference

White House sources have indicated the president's railroad conference will be held a few days after the I. C. C. issues its decision on the 15 per cent freight rate increase requested by the railroads.

As for business in general, President Roosevelt was given a report yesterday in which John D. Biggers, unemployment census administrator, said:

"It looks to me like the recession will not go beyond its present bounds. It is dragging along the bottom, and consumers goods, in my opinion, will soon show a pickup."

Biggers gave the president a partial analysis of jobless registration from 16 scattered states, showing that one-third of the jobless were less than 25 years old, about 50 per cent were under 35, over 65 per cent under 45, slightly more than 25 per cent were over 45 and 4 per cent were between 65 and 71.

Outline Subsidies For Crop Control

Tentative Figures Include 12 Cents Per Bushel On Wheat

Washington—(U)—Farmers who comply with the new crop control program this year will receive a government subsidy of 2.4 cents a pound on their cotton and 12 cents a bushel on their wheat, agriculture department officials decided tentatively today.

Payments for tobacco may range from half a cent to one and a half cents a pound, and for rice .123 cents a pound.

The subsidies would be paid from the $500,000,000 fund which congress is authorized to appropriate for benefits to farmers diverting land from soil depleting to soil-building crops.

The tentative rate for potatoes has been set at 3 cents a bushel, and peanuts 2 cent a pound. No rate has been determined yet for corn.

The program inaugurates a new method of making payments to cooperating growers. Last year they were paid on the basis of the amount of land they diverted from the main soil-depleting crops. This year growers will be paid the subsidy rate on all crops produced on acreages allotted them for each major crop.

Growers of other crops will be penalized by means of deductions if they plant in excess. For instance, the program as being drafted would penalize wheat growers 56 cents a bushel, rice growers a cent a pound, tobacco growers from 5 to 15 cents a pound, and potato growers 30 cents a bushel for that portion of their crop produced on land in excess of their acreage allotments.

Today and Tomorrow

BY WALTER LIPPMAN

The Knight With the Wooden Sword

In a time like this when so much is hidden, when the policies of so many states are backed by sudden violence and are meant to surprise, it is not easy to estimate confidently the consequences of an event like Mr. Anthony Eden's resignation. But I see no reason as yet which compels us to take the desperately tragic view of it and to declare that it marks the surrender of Great Britain to all the powers of darkness.

On the contrary I can see many persuasive reasons for thinking that Mr. Eden's resignation is a necessary step in the education of the democratic peoples, and that it may prove to have been the only way in which those peoples can be made to clarify their purposes in face of the dangers that beset them.

Last Knight Had To Work With Wooden Sword

For it is necessary to remember that though Mr. Eden sincerely believes in the principles of the League and of democratic resistance to the designs of the military dictatorships, in fact his term of office has been marked by a series of humiliating surrenders and submissions. Between what Mr. Eden has wanted to do and what he has been compelled to do there has been a very great difference. It has been so great that, for example, Miss Dorothy Thompson, who on Wednesday hailed him as "The Last Knight of Europe," was scolding him on Monday because he had assisted to Hitler's coup in Austria. It cannot be a bad thing to liquidate a situation which can bring about such confusion in public opinion, which can cause the friends of democracy to look upon Mr. Eden as their champion when he defines his principles and to feel betrayed when they look at the record.

The crux of the matter, it seems to me, is that ever since the Ethiopian affair Mr. Eden has been in an impossible position. Instead of being the defender of the principles with which he has been associated, he has been driven step by step to compromises which threaten to end in the complete discredit of his principles. The reasons for this are evident. At no moment since the League set out to apply sanctions to Italy has Mr. Eden been able to make his principles effective by convincing Mussolini that Great Britain was ready to fight.

Yet nothing else had the smallest chance of impressing Mussolini. Great Britain has not been ready to fight for the principles that her Foreign Secretary was proclaiming. Great Britain has not felt herself to be well enough armed. She has not felt sure enough of her allies. The British people have not had the will to fight. And no one knew this better than Mussolini.

That being the case, the Last Knight of Europe has had to go forth to fight the infidels brandishing a wooden sword.

Democracies Unwilling To Pay For Their Policies

The failure of Mr. Eden's conduct of British foreign policy is due in the last analysis to the fact that the democracies have wanted policies for which they were not prepared to pay the price. Mr. Eden has voiced their aspirations. But he has not controlled their behavior. They have been unwilling to admit that the adversaries of democracy are ready to kill and to be killed in order to achieve their purposes, and that as against men who are in this mood, words, moral attitudes, economic threats and blank cartridges are altogether unavailing.

What is more, the democracies have not realized that to take the high moral attitude with the dictators when the dictators believe that it is a pious bluff is the most dangerous of all courses which a government can pursue. For the high sentiments do not restrain the aggression, and the constant yielding encourages it. It arouses the kind of contempt which Hitler displayed on Sunday, and in the end is almost certain to lead to some incident where the government is trapped and compelled to fight anyway.

Must Decide Whether To Fish Or Cut Bait

Mr. Eden's resignation brings the democracies to a point where they have to make up their minds to fish or cut bait. If they are going to stand by Mr. Eden's principles, then in the world as it now is they must convince themselves to begin with, and then the dictators, that at some definite point they will stand and fight for those principles. In dealing with these warlike states the democracies must not delude themselves with the idea that there is any bloodless, inexpensive and

Several of the girls and their dates were dancing at a recreation spot near the campus. HOLLYWOOD LIGHTS CAMERA ACTION HAPPENINGS

BY ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood.—When they figured which of Hollywood's cowboy stars ranked highest at the box-office this year, you can put it down that the name will be Gene Autry.

Four years ago this Autry was a Hollywood unknown. Three years ago he appeared in his first picture, in a minor role. In his next picture he was starred. All told, he has made 22 films. Starring for Republic, an independent studio, he has bids from two majors, 20th Century-Fox and Paramount.

He gets an average of 2,000 fan letters a week. The total jumps whenever he "guests" on the air, which is frequently. After he "guested" for Rudy Vallee 10,000 fans wrote in. He had to employ three extra secretaries to answer them. For his regular correspondence and business affairs he maintains a business office and one secretary. He religiously keeps up with fan mail calling for his personal attention.

New Slant On Old Plot

His pictures play on Broadway but not on Hollywood boulevard. His studio has a standing offer of one week's free rental on any Autry picture to any exhibitor anywhere, but Hollywood boulevard theaters so far haven't taken it. About 200 others, over the country, who took the chance have booked the entire run of Autrys. This has jumped the number of theaters who play Autrys to approximately 8,000.

Autry was born in Tioga, Texas, came to Hollywood via Tulsa, Okla., radio and phonograph recordings. He was first to put music in a western—and it was one of Ken Maynard's westerns at that. In "In Old Santa Fe," Gene sang in a musical sequence or two. Maynard, the star, sang but through the courtesy of a voice double. Now virtually all the westerns are "singing" pictures.

The music, plus an attempt to break away from the old "western" formula, gets much of the credit for the popularity of Autry's product. He never uses the plot about the cowgirl, the hero, the mortgaged ranch, and the conniving villain—not in the old sense. He dresses it up in modern clothes, sometimes so nicely that it doesn't seem like that plot at all. There is always enough of it left, and plenty of shooting and riding and open country scenery, to make it a real western.

He uses "specialties" wherever possible to enhance the entertainment value. Will and Gladys Ahern of vaudeville for instance, and his own Smiley Burnette, and now Lasses White, the minstrel man. He acquired Smiley, the huge accordion player, from a one-man radio station in Tuscola, Ill. Smiley was the one man, getting $12 a week and gasoline. Gene, touring with an act billing 20 members, met a theater manager who objected because he had only 19. Smiley was the answer—at $35 a week. He gets more now.

Gets Many Proposals

Autry is six feet, blue-eyed, quiet-talking, agreeable—and a showman. Dresses in neatly creas-ed, modified "cowboy" business suit, boots, ten-gallon cream-colored hat, handkerchief bowtie. His red ranch truck—his name's on it—makes no point of avoiding public places. On personal appearances he travels in a trailer—with his horse Champion.

His fan mail includes the usual number of marriage proposals. He is already married, lives on a ranch in North Hollywood.

He thinks—honestly—that he's one of the luckiest guys in pictures.

Fox River Is Y Cage Champion

Defeats Wire Works, 44-21, in Final Game Of Playoff

CITY-Y.M.C.A. LEAGUE
Fox River 44, Wire Works 21.
Y.M.C.A. 57, Town Taxis 34.

FOX RIVER Paper company basketball team annexed the City-Y.M.C.A. cage title last night when it defeated the Wire Works, 44 to 21, in the final game of the Shaughnessy playoff. The Fox River also finished in first place during the regular schedule. The Wires took second place by virtue of their defeat and the Y.M.C.A. capped third with a 57 to 34 win over the Town Taxis who finished fourth.

Monday evening the cagers will gather for a 6:30 dinner at the Y.M.C.A. at which trophies will be awarded and an all-star aggregation named. Coach A. C. Denney of Lawrence will be the principal speaker.

The Fox River-Wire game started to be just as close as the large crowd expected. First one club and then the other led and because guarding was close most of the shooting was from mid-floor. Fox River held a 9 to 7 advantage at the quarter through the fine work of Orville Wosner.

In the second period the Fox River found a way to break through the Wire's defense for a couple short shots and increased its lead to six points, 18 to 12, at the half. Third quarter play became a bit wilder as the teams shot from out on the floor in an effort to bring out the defenses. At the end of the period Fox River was leading 26 to 16.

The fourth quarter saw the Fox River literally "go to town" and score heavily to win by a big margin. The guarding of Kelly, Verberick and Grishaber featured this period and the Wires got only a field goal. For the Wires, Ken Slattery, Bill Lesseyong, Karel Zimmerman and Gordon Slattery starred.

The taller Y.M.C.A. five had little trouble downing the Town Taxis in the third and fourth place game, 57 to 34. The Y squad jumped away to a big lead in the opening minutes and was in front 15 to 3 at the quarter. In the second quarter the count was 29 to 10 and at the end of the third stanza 42 to 29. Paldich, Reif and Piper starred for the Y while Mullen, Hammer and Zussman showed well for the losers.

Marion Points For Tourney Win

Pure Golds Heavy Favorites in Their District Cage Meet

Marion — The last team to enter the Class C district basketball tournament to be held in the Marion high school gymnasium Feb. 28 and March 3 and 4 was Marion.

Marion again has an unusually fine team composed of four regulars and a sub from last year's squad which got as far as the semi-finals in the Class C state tournament. Marion is the local tournament favorite and with good luck should cop it easily.

The first string includes Borchart and M. Meyer at forwards, Wulk center, and Bvers and Elandt at guards. All but Elandt are seniors.

The reserves include A. Kristof, forward and senior, Thiel guard and senior, Lorrige and Meyer, juniors, the latter a forward and the former a guard.

The season's record: Marion 45, Scandinavia 12, Marion 42, Seymour 7, Marion 52, Stratford 10, Marion 57, Clintonville 4, Marion 33, Antigo 14, Marion 32, Weyauwega 13, Marion 16, Wausau 19, Marion 31, Amherst 17, Marion 24, Waupaca 8, Marion 35, Manawa 16, Marion 48, Clintonville 5, Marion 47, Waupaca 12, Marion 35, Weyauwega 18, Marion 24, Iola 15, Marion 42, Iola 13, Marion 43, Amherst 12.

Emery Taking Hard Way to Win Houston Golf Club Tourney

Houston, Texas — (4) — Broad-shouldered Walter Emery, working the hard way to win the Houston country club invitational golf title, goes into his third day of grief today against bespectacled Jack Munger, one of the game's ranking amateurs.

Emery, the Houstonian who went to the finals of the 1935 national amateur and won a Walker cup team position, was forced into a playoff for a championship flight berth.

Paired against Reynolds Smith, Dallas Walker cup star, in the first round he came off a one-up winner despite Smith's 69, two under par 71. Emery had a match play 70. Munger shot 70 yesterday in beating Ed Anderson of Houston, 5 and 4.

Johnny Goodman broke par by two shots in beating Bobby Riegel of Beaumont, Texas, 5 and 3. Goodman met Bill Welch, southwest conference champion, today.

John Dawson, Chicago, today met David (Spec) Goldman of Dallas, 1934 national amateur finalist. Dawson ripped par by four yesterday in beating Bill Skeeters of Dallas.

Lazzeri to Serve On Grimm's Board Of Cub Strategy

Group Organized to Bring National League Title To Chicago

A VALON, SANTA CATALINA ISLAND — (4) — The curtain of mystery hiding the connection Tony Lazzeri will have with the Chicago Cubs this season was lifted today.

Lazzeri, after 12 years with the World Champion New York Yankees, will serve as player and one of the principal members of Manager Charlie Grimm's newly created board of strategy, organized to bring the 1938 National league championship to Chicago.

The other members will be Charles Leo "Gabby" Hartnett, rated as the outstanding catcher in the major leagues, and the two veteran coaches, John "Red" Corriden and Roy Johnson.

Wrigley Impressed Organization of the board was the idea of P. K. Wrigley, owner of the Cubs, who signed the 35-year-old Lazzeri without ever having met him. He was impressed with the former Yankee star because of his playing qualities, his sharp wisdom of baseball on the field and his ability to execute it.

Lazzeri was a most interesting member of the 15 Cubs who plunged into the first hard work-out of the spring training camp, paid today. Owner Wrigley sat with Manager Grimm under the burning sun yesterday to watch the brief limbering up drill in which Lazzeri engaged in bunting practice with three rookies. Tony worked as hard as if he had been a rookie himself. In a few minutes perspiration was streaming down his face.

Schedule Bat Drills Lazzeri, lean and trim for an athlete of his age, was as brown and little as if he had been playing for months. He started out impressively. He is quiet to a modest degree and rarely says much, but what little he may utter undoubtedly will draw serious attention from fellow members of the Cubs' board of strategy.

Manager Grimm intends to give his players intensive batting practice the first few days of the training grid. He brought along five members of the Los Angeles pitching staff, along with a condition for the job. They will be aided by the veterans of the Cubs with the arrival of the regulars a week hence.

GRIMES, MUNGO HAPPY AGAIN

After all the mid-winter talk about the Brooklyn Dodgers trading Van Lingle Mungo had subsided, Manager Burleigh Grimes (left) and the big right hander got together at Hot Springs, Ark., for a tuncup before the Dodgers' training season opens at Clearwater, Fla. Apparently there were no hard feelings.

Badger Boxers to Mix With Syracuse

Both Squads in Bout at Madison Have Undeated Records

MADISON — (4) — The University of Wisconsin boxing team will be up against tough competition tomorrow night when it meets Syracuse university Eastern Intercollegiate champions at the fieldhouse here.

Both teams boast unblemished records, but the eastern lads are on the home stretch of their schedule. Coach Johnny Walsh's Badgers.

The two teams have met twice previously, Wisconsin winning 6-2 in 1935 and losing 2 to 5 the following year.

Wisconsin defeated St. Norbert last week for their lone victory while the visitors have come out on the long end of bouts with Pittsburgh, Penn State, Navy and Bucknell and fought to a draw with West Virginia.

The outstanding fight on tomorrow night's card will probably be between Coach Roy Simmons' captain, Fred Zuccaro, runner-up for the intercollegiate title, who has won five and lost one this year, and Omar Crocker, Badger ace 135 pounder.

and also will be fined $100 a day for every practice day missed," Comiskey said.

Kaukauna High At Clintonville For N. E. W. Tilt

Kaws Primed for Fourth Win and Fifth Place in Standings

KAUKAUNA—Tonight Coach Paul E. Little's Kaukauna High school cagers will go after their fourth conference win against Clintonville on the Truckers' home floor. A tilt between the B teams of the two schools will precede the main battle.

The best the Kaws can hope to do now in the Northeastern conference race is to place fifth. To do so they must defeat Clintonville and Neenah, their last two opponents, and New London, now in the fifth notch, must drop its next game, which will be its last of the season.

The Kaws should come through with a win tonight. The Truckers have shown steady improvement all season and almost upset West De Pere two weeks ago, but a Kaukauna five at top form should take this evening's contest in the same manner as its triumph here in January. In that game the Kaws coasted to a 27-17 win.

May Try Reserves
The Kaws can pull away to a comfortable margin Little probably will give his reserves a chance. With the tournament nearing reserves have to be found. Don Bisek appears capable of playing a good game at forward but outside of him the squad is weak in replacements. Reserves who will see action tonight are McCarty, Grogan, Swadberg and Bisek. A newcomer to the A squad, Robert D'erus, promoted from the B's when he showed well in several games.

The same five players who have started all but two of 12 games this year will again be ready for the tipoff tonight. Cliff Vanvenhoven and Bill Peterson will be at forward, Paul Alger at the center spot, and Carl Giordana and Leland Lambie in the back court.

Legion Girls Beat Green Bay, 19-18

Rubber Game With Gordon Bents Planned for Neutral Floor

LITTLE CHUTE—Little Chute Legion girls nosed out the Gordon Bents, 19 to 18, with "Midge" Kroner scoring the winning bucket in the final seconds of the game at Y.M.C.A. gymnasium in Green Bay. Last evening. She netted the deciding points on a neat side shot.

"Breezy" Brys was the high scorer for Little Chute with four field goals and a free toss for nine points while B. Hermes topped the losers with eight points on four buckets. Gordon Bents cagers grabbed an 8 to 5 lead at the end of the first quarter and the score was snugged, 11 to 11, at halftime. The Green Bay quint gained a third 16 to 15 edge at the end of the third frame.

Both teams have won one tilt and a rubber game will be scheduled on a neutral floor, probably Black Creek.

The game was played as a preliminary to the Shefford Cheese and Old Life Live Insurance company tilt for the first half championship in the Y.M.C.A. league at Green Bay. The familiar faces of Osen and Straubel, former Lawrence college stars, appeared in the Life Line roster. Life Liners won the tilt, 42 to 42.

Three Chicagoans Gallery Favorites In $3,000 Tourney

Thomasville, Ga.—(P)—Touring golf professionals matched strokes over the 6,544-yard Glen Arven course today in the $3,000 Thomasville open tournament, with three Chicagoans high among the gallery favorites.

One was Dick Metz, 28, the defending champion who was feted by fans here as an "adopted son." Johnny Revolta, former P.G.A. champion, and "Light Horse" Harry Cooper, the leading money winner of the winter circuit, were the others.

In practice, Cooper turned in a 31-32-69 yesterday, three under par figures of 35-36. Metz shot a 71. Revolta, who won the first open tournament here in 1936, got a par 72.

Best of the practice rounds, however, was presented by Vic Ghezzi of Deal, N. J. He got a fine 34-33-67.

Others who demanded attention included Jimmy Hines of Garden City, L. I., who shot a 69; Frank Moore of Mamaroneck, N. Y., 70, and W. L. Manton of San Francisco, 71.

Approximately 100 golfers were entered for the 72-hole competition. They will play 18 holes today, 18 Saturday and 36 Sunday.

The winning professional will receive $700.

Donovan Says Louis Has Greatest Left Jab He's Ever Seen in Fight Ring

NEW YORK—(P)—One of the most enthusiastic men in town about the new and matured Joe Louis is Referee Arthur Donovan, a man whose opinion rates more than the usual respect.

Donovan has handled every heavyweight fight of importance here in recent years, including Max Schmeling's knockout of Louis, Tommy Farr's 15-round roughhouse with the champion, and Louis' three-round kayo of the impetuous Natie Mann night before last.

He says that Joe now is very close to the super-fighter that excited fight writers and bedazzled ring-siders thought he was two years ago. Donovan has been in there close with the big Negro. It's obvious he thinks Joe will reverse the score on Schmeling next June.

"He's got about everything now," he said, when asked for his very best opinion. "Principally, he has the greatest left jab I've ever seen. Honestly, it's terrific. The first time he reached out and stabbed Mann with it I heard Natie's nose crack. It could knock some good men out with it in time, and it would cut anyone to ribbons in 15 rounds."

"Sucker For Right?" Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's voluble manager, was at the same time assuring a neighboring group that "Louie still is a sucker for a right. Look how Mann batted him around with a right."

"I'm not so sure about that," said Donovan. "Joe has learned a lot about keeping away from a right, and I can see it. Mann caught him by surprise with a couple, but he'll be watching out for Schmeling."

"When they fought the first time, Louis had been popping over a lot of fellows with that left hook, thrown from any distance and any angle. He had been missing a lot of them and leaving himself wide open, but nobody was smart enough to take advantage of it until Schmeling came along."

More Cautious
"Now he's much more cautious with it. Against Mann, if you noticed, he didn't throw his left until the second round, when he was in close and had a target he knew he couldn't miss. In other words, Schmeling doubtless will hit him with rights, but not like the ones he landed in their first fight, when he was crossing over Joe's missed lefts and catching him flush, coming forward."

"And Schmeling will find Joe a much tamer, harder hitter than the other night. When Mann hit him the first time I ever saw him show a trace of the old Dempsey spirit."

Which, naturally, got Donovan questioned on whether he thought the present Louis could have whipped the Jack Dempsey of Toledo.

"That's a tough one to answer, but you can bet it would have been a great fight."

COMMON SENSE CONSERVATION
By L.H. KINGSTON
GREEN BAY—There are in the United States somewhere between eleven and fifteen million conservation minded citizens who are members of some local organization interested in wildlife conservation. The work of harnessing all of these various organizations together to compel recognition by our national government of the urgent need of wildlife restoration has been undertaken by the General Wildlife Federation.

At the head of this organization is the famous conservationist and cartoonist "Ding" Darling.

Realizing the value of wildlife restoration to human welfare, President Roosevelt has designated the third week in March (20th-26th) as National Wildlife Restoration week. Conservation programs, dinners and lectures during this week will be carried on by local groups all over the nation.

Armstrong Favored to Score His 33rd Knockout in Chicago Debut

Chicago—(P)—With the odds 10 to 1 he will score the 33rd knockout of his sensational career, Henry Armstrong, world's featherweight boxing champion, makes his Chicago debut tonight against Everett Rightmire of Sioux City, Iowa.

Even though the 10-round bout will be a non-title affair, a crowd of 10,000, and a gate of $20,000, was likely.

Few observers here give Rightmire much chance to go the distance, even though the Iowa has won six fights and drew in another in his last seven contests. In six years he has engaged in 147 bouts, losing only 10.

Armstrong has not lost a match since Tony Chavez beat him on a foul in St. Louis Dec. 4, 1935. In a rematch, Armstrong sent Chavez to the canvass in the tenth round. Rightmire has been knocked out only once, Chavez turning the trick at Butte, Mont., in 1935.

With the signing yesterday of Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis and Harry Thomas of Eagle Bend, Minn., for a 15 round title bout at the stadium April 1, major league boxing here, in the tenth round, a moon, appears definitely ready for a comeback.

Joe Triner, chairman of the state athletic commission, said $10, including tax, will be top price for the Louis-Thomas bout.

Duquesne University Coach
BEST COURT PLAYER NOT ALWAYS HIGH SCORER
Man's All-around Defensive Ability and Teamwork Play Big Part in Rating Him

THE ideal thing in watching a basketball game would be to have non-partisan feelings. Coaches and newspapermen are not objective. They watch a game purely for the game itself. Fans, of course, have favorite teams that they would have win at all costs.

As a result of their partisanship these fans are not enjoying the game to its fullest extent.

A scoring performer to the fan is tops. If a fellow can throw in six or seven baskets a game the average fan will acclaim him as a finished star. From a coach's standpoint, however, scoring in basketball is a team game—all hands must work together to be successful.

In the old Eastern Professional league the scorer was credited with his basket but the man who passed the ball to him was given an assist. At the end of the year when the award was given for the most valuable player these assists counted as much as baskets in the final tabulations. The purpose, of course, was to encourage team play.

Teamwork Marks Player
Offense alone doesn't show the full value of play. The fan should watch the players on defense as well as on offense. He should ask himself how a particular player is in his passing. Does he throw away more passes than a flock of baskets will make up? Does he break up enemy plays and does he steal the ball away from the offense? How does the man play off the backboard? Does he switch from one man to a teammate's man in order to avert a basket?

These points are the deciding factors in the spectator's ability to judge a man.

The more individual the play becomes the less chance there is for success of the team. A high point scorer or a club can cause discussion and ill-feeling among his teammates. I have seen it happen on my teams as well as on other college aggregations. If a fellow on the team scores consistently but comes back to thank the players responsible for setting him up he will avert jealousy and discord. Harmony on the team is what the coach strives for continuously. The fans make it harder for him if they insist on one man doing the scoring.

Able Official Not Hesitant
In watching a game fans should observe the officials. A good official always makes snap decisions and is not hesitant in calling infractions. He is always on the play. When two men are officiating it certainly poor policy when the arbiter furthest away calls the play. Officials strive for teamwork the same as the players do. The test of a good official is determined when the spectators hardly notice him.

Basketball is a difficult game to control. It requires snap judgment. An official who is not too conspicuous who is democratic and not ubiquitous, gaining for himself the everlasting respect of all coaches.

The next time you attend a game remember that it is human to err. Show the officials you appreciate their work. And if you will remember what I said concerning the play of individuals, you will find basketball an exciting and enjoyable pastime.

BADMINTON PLAYERS TO Show at Gym Tomorrow
Lawrence College Men's club badminton team, composed largely of Neenah followers of the sport, will clash with the Wisconsin Rapids Badminton club here at Alexander gymnasium at about 3:30 Saturday afternoon.

The Rapids is holding a state badminton meet on March 18, 19 and 20 and is making a tour to stir up interest. Among the members of the Lawrence squad will be John Pinkerton, William Kellett, Robert Sage, Leslie Sensenbrenner and Jerry Whale.

REGIONAL TOURNEY MAY
Be Staged at Neenah
Marquette—(P)—Paul F. Nevenman, secretary of the Wisconsin Interscholastic Athletic association, said today the schedule for the Class A state high school basketball tournament would be drawn up at a meeting to be held at some central point in the state March 13 or 16.

Nevenman said the annual state swimming meet would be held in Milwaukee March 19, the golf meet at Madison June 3-4, and the tennis meet at Neenah May 20-21. Four schools have indicated an interest in holding a one-day baseball tournament, he said.

MARION MILEY PLAYS
Patty Berg in Meet
Ormond Beach, Fla.—(P)—Marion Miley of Fort Pierce, Fla., tried her hand today at a job no other woman golfer has accomplished on the winter tournament: trial-boating.

They met in the semi-finals of the South Atlantic tournament, and red-haired Patty ruled the favorite despite the fact Mrs. Miley was winning tournaments while her opponent from Minneapolis was still learning the game.

In the other bracket, Kathryn Hemphill of Columbia, S. C., winner last year, had an edge over the veteran Mrs. William Hockenjos of Lake Hopatcong, N. J.

Patty led the way through the quarterfinals yesterday with a 6 and 4 victory over Sally Guth of Webster Grove, Mo. Miss Miley won from Jean Bauer of Providence, R. I., 5 and 1.

Complete Plans For Kaukauna B' Cage Tournament

Representatives of Various Schools Hold Meeting

DETAILS of the Kaukauna Class B basketball tournament were discussed and settled at a meeting of principals and coaches of the eight interested schools, and Kaukauna High school athletic council members and city officers at Hotel Kaukauna last night. The evening's gathering opened with a dinner at 6:30.

Mayor Louis Nelson greeted the group commenting that Kaukauna had found that a sound athletic program did much to stop juvenile delinquency and commended efforts of the high school athletic council in helping stage tournaments.

Charles Towles, president of the athletic council, stressed the need for cooperation on the part of Kaukauna adults to make the tournament a success and reduced rates possible for high school students. He urged that everyone in Kaukauna talk about the meet and give it all the advertising and publicity possible.

Warren Witte, Appleton, who will be the chief tournament official, and who is a member of the National Federation of High Schools Football Rules committee commented briefly on how rules changes are sought and made, and on basketball regulations. With reference to the tournament he asked the coaches and principals remind their students and townspeople to conduct themselves as well as the

EMPIRE FOR A LADY BY ALAN LEMAY

SYNOPSIS: Chance and a young English girl have contrived to make the trader and gun-runner, James Clyde, rajah of Balingong. Christine Forrester, completing a plan of her dead father, is behind the Dyak revolt which caused Malay surrender. This desperate enterprise may bring power and wealth, or defeat and death. It means lifelong jungle exile for Clyde and myself (Paul Thorne, his nephew). But Christine needs our help, and we are both in love with her.

Chapter 29 The New Rajah
All these negotiations had to be conducted through the goings and comings of Lundok. For Clyde would not go into Balingong again. And Rajah Mantusen could not come out. Lundok's prowling were a little safer now, since the orders to Tanyalang riflemen; but he still could travel only at night, and often was delayed for hours in his circuit of the intervening miles of jungle. In the end, Clyde had to make guarantees of enormous indemnities if any accident should befall Mantusen himself, or his goods, when Malay praus took to the river. This was purely a gamble on Clyde's part; he could not pay the indemnities if our plans went wrong. But I think those stubborn Malays would have died there if they could not have obtained terms which they felt satisfactory to the saving of face. Our longboat moved up the Siderong river at last. It was I who officially took over the improvised palace which represented the theoretical lordship of Balingong raj. Clyde had been forced, after much arguing, to admit that we could no longer allow him to risk falling hostage to Mantusen. Even the danger of some uncalculated indignity must be guarded against. He was no longer simply Captain James Clyde of the Linkang, gunrunner to the narrow seas. He was our new rajah, upon whose prestige and supposed infallibility all our plans must depend. There was no proclamation ceremony, under the circumstances. But word was now running through the Tanyalang, and from the Tanyalang through all the Dyak tribes, that I herewith took over Balingong raj on behalf of the Rajah Clyde -- rajah of Balingong -- in the name of Anthony Forrester, and by deed of the Sultan of Saramba; that the Rajah Clyde now ruled Balingong asserting the authority of life and death to its farthest limits, but promising friendship and assistance in war to all who were faithful.

difficulties, which could even end with a war with Serebba, might come of an incident like that; but for the present Mantusen and his people were out of there.

Late that day, after a long parley with Mantusen aboard the Linkang, Clyde came up the river to his palace. He was brought in a big Dyak binkong, paddled by the pick of the Tanyalang.

With him came Robert Forrester, so weak and mackerel-gutted from fever that he seemed three parts disembodied. It was impossible to make out what he thought about all this, so little energy was left in him with which to take interest. But in a way, his pale immobility was impressive; and his blondness among these dark people made him look like some strange young god.

Just before sunset Clyde held his first audience with the Tanyalangs. They came into the big inner compound cautiously at first, reluctant with suspicion; the various groups watched each other arrogantly, and with distrust. But within an hour they must all have been there, and many pangrangs and others who were not supposed to be, for presently the compound was filled with more than 300 men.

The Tanyalang were not pie-piecing—small brown men with ragged hair, wild visages, and short naked legs. They wore black goat-skin war jackets and sheathed pangrangs, but the elaborate shields without which the average Dyak will not be seen, in time of war were not carried by the Tanyalang.

In A Mood For War
One thing common to them all was enough to send chills down the back of any white man who knew his business here. Around the neck of almost every man was a thing suspending that small, intricate jewel of the Tanyalang—the same hornbill cut-out that Christine had shown me, and that I had seen swinging from the gun taken by Mantusen. And each man carried a rifle crooked in his left elbow, muzzle high.

The ordinary Dyak handles his gasoipe gun, if he has one, with a gingerly awkwardness, until he has had it for a long time. After that he uses it for driving stakes. But there was something loving and reverent, and also practiced, in the way the Tanyalang warriors handled their weapons. These were not simply men who had rifles; they were riflemen. If I had not learned by this time to believe what Christine Forrester had told me about her father, I would have believed it now.

Clyde had a pile of mats put at the edge of the platform, in front of the house, and when he at last came to sit cross-legged there, all movement and sound in the compound stopped. Robert Forrester sat at his right, very still and white. I sat on Clyde's left, and on my left sat Lundok, who helped with the translations.

Clyde was in shoal water, and he knew it. All about us was a huge, angry stew-pot of Dyak tribes, no doubt befuddled by the turn of events but in a mood for war. It was up to him to establish at least a semblance of government, and do it quickly. The Tanyalang, whom Anthony Forrester had brought into partial discipline, were useful to us now as a means of conveying Clyde's immediate intent.

At first, of course, he could do little except to assure them that he represented their friend, the rajab laut — Anthony Forrester, whom they must not know to be dead — and attempt to obtain their temporary obedience, or at least neutrality.

Robert Forrester kept prompting Clyde out of the corner of his mouth as Clyde now told them what great things were ahead. Their oppressors had been vanished and sent away. Their new rajab was devoted to their welfare. He would defend them in war. He would protect them in trade. He would lead them into ways which would make them great.

All this was very vague, and it was a good thing that it was. If Clyde had attempted to give them any exact idea of what he meant to do, they would have gone away scandalized by what little they understood. As it was, they perhaps got the notion that he was promising them all more heads than formerly.

I don't know whether they believed him or not, or how much.

Every time Lundok concluded translating one of my uncle's speeches, the buzz of Dyak voices would spread through the enclosure and seem to hang in the warm air until the next burst of oratory.

The fact that Clyde was a white man, possessed of a strong ship, gave him a great prestige; but it also made them suspicious.

BY VICTOR EUBANK

New York—(AP)—Selected stocks climbed over numerous obstacles in today's market and emerged from a rather jumpy session with gains running to a point or so.

The list dipped at the start following yesterday's dividend omission by Chrysler but quickly regained balance and converted initial losses into advances of fractions to more than 2.

Top marks were whittled down in the final hour when General Motors announced salary cuts ranging from 10 to 20 per cent for some 40,000 "white collar" employees, blaming the action on continuance of the recession and its effect on automotive distribution.

There was a delayed opening of more than 10 minutes in Chrysler which, on a block of 3,000 shares, showed a decline of 21 points. The loss was subsequently reduced substantially. General Motors was a shade higher the greater part of the day. Transfers were around 950,000 shares.

Steels, aircrafts, rubbers, coppers, mail orders, farm implements, utilities and specialties took turns in the advancing parade.

Carriers were given a brief run-up in the afternoon on rumors of the long-awaited interstate commerce commission freight rates decision would be handed down over the week-end. A contra-seasonal drop in last week's car loadings was not especially unsettling.
